Tirpitz Is Blasted to Bottom By 3 RAF Earthquake Bombs

NAZI RAIL BRIDGE HIT—As a Martin B-26 Marauder of the Tactical Air Force flies over the target area, smoke curls up from bomb hits on a rail bridge at Legnano in northern Italy. Navy Traps Jap Force On Palau

Ships Block Passage And Keep Isle Control As Marines Withdraw

U. S. FLEET HEADQUARTERS, PEARL HARBOR, Tuesday, Nov. 14.—(UP)—A small Japanese force sneaked ashore at Ngeregong island northeast of Peleliu in the Palau group and forced an American patrol to evacuate its position in a minor counter-invasion in the Pacific war, but U. S. Naval units apparently trapped the enemy almost immediately, Adm. Nimitz announced yesterday.

Approximately 200 Japanese, equipped with knee-mortars and machineguns, went ashore on Ngeregong under cover of a storm on the night of November 7-8, the communique said.

Ngeregong previously had been occupied by a small U. S. Marine patrol.

As the Japs moved in, several American LCI's took the Marine patrol off the island without casualties, Nimitz reported.

Two U. S. gunboats and one destroyer then blocked the Denges passage north of Ngeregong through which the Japanese apparently arrived.

American surface units bombarded the island on November 9 and U. S. planes bombed and strafed Jap positions, sinking an undisclosed number of barges.

Meanwhile, planes of the Second Marine Division wing exacted partial vengeance for the counter-invasion by striking the length of the Palaus and bagging a Jap destroyer.

Marine Corsairs sank an enemy destroyer November 10 which had been previously damaged near Golou in the Palaus.

Nimitz said Ngesang on Babelthuap in the northern Palaus was hit November 9, with one barge sunk and a fuel tank set afire. Koror and Babelthuap were also bombed by Hellcats and Liberators and a radio station was hit.

The Japanese have committed five divisions—possibly 50,000 to 75,000 men—to the showdown defense of Leyte island, with two divisions fighting savagely to stem the U. S. 24th Division hammering down the Pinamopoan-Ormoc road, Gen. MacArthur announced today.

The 24th Division, battling through a murderous Japanese barrage and increasing strong opposition, is slowly pushing down the Ormoc road against elements of two enemy divisions.

The enemy resistance northeast of Ormoc has been broken by the 26th Infantry Division and Japanese remnants are being driven into the hills beyond Patok and Dagami, the communique reported.

The current American drive has penetrated the enemy's potential assembly area and has forced the enemy to prematurely commit his forces in a vain defense of the Yamashita line protecting Ormoc, last major enemy port on Leyte.

Long-range artillery continued to create havoc along the entire corridor while Leyte-based fighters dive-bombed Japanese bivouac areas near Valencia, seven miles north of Ormoc.

Nine enemy planes were shot down in the day's aerial activity while ground forces continued their slow but steady advance in some of the bitterest close-in fighting of the Pacific war.

U. S. war planes were shadowing enemy shipping off the west coast port of Palompon, where the Japs may have shifted their reinforcement landings.

Advance units of the First Cavalry dug in among the ridges after seizing Mt. Catabaran and 4,048-foot Mt. Cabungangan, while

Norse Seas Claim 41,000-Ton Ship

LONDON, Tuesday, Nov. 14.—(AP)—The 41,000-ton German battleship Tirpitz, last "unsinkable" giant in Adolf Hitler's fugitive navy, was capsized and sunk in the icy Norwegian waters of Tromso fjord after being hit squarely by three six-ton earthquake bombs dropped by RAF Lancasters, the British announced last night.

Attacking out of the Arctic mists yesterday morning, it took the British only a few minutes to finish off this great potential killer which never had engaged in a single surface battle, and which the Germans were five years in building at a cost of $50,000,000.

The cost to the British was one bomber, out of an attacking force of 29, an air ministry communique said.

THREE HIT DECK

Three bombs landed on the deck of the Tirpitz, which blew up inside, keeled over, and sank slowly, ending a three-year chase by the British and Russians.

The Lancasters struck at 10:30 a. m. from a height of 5,000 feet, and 15 minutes later the ship burst into flames and turned over. Reconnaissance showed the ship had capsized, with 700 feet of her keel sticking out of the water. Around the wreck was a great oil pool.

The sister ship of the illfated Bismarck went to her grave just a few days after reports from neutral countries had speculated on an imminent invasion of Norway by the Allies.

The Tirpitz, already crippled by previous air and midget submarine assaults, had been a threat to the Arctic supply lines to Russia, and a potential menace to any landing in Norway. She had kept some units of the British home fleet watching her moves for a long time.

SECRET LANDING

Obviously these vessels were freed by the sinking and possibly would be available for the battle in the Far East much earlier than if the Tirpitz had remained afloat. The German navy, already a skeleton, now has its backbone snapped.

The successful mission of the big bombers, carrying the new streamlined, armorpiercing 12,000-pound earthquake bombs, was led by Wing Commander J. B. Tait and Squadron Leader A. G. Williams. Taking off from Britain on the historic flight the planes "landed away from base," presumably in Russia.

Roaring in before the Germans could throw up their usual protective smoke screen, the Lancasters caught the battlewagon in an explosive vise and the three direct hits were registered in quick succession.

"SEVERAL" BLASTS

"Her guns had been firing like blazes when we first arrived," said an Australian pilot, Flight Lt. B. A. Buckham, of Sydney. "The guns stopped after the first bomb. Not a shot came up after that. Smoke began to pour up. It

Reds Push 10 Miles on Budapest

Tito's Forces Smash Big Communications Center in South Serbia

LONDON, Tuesday, Nov. 14.—(UP)—Red Army forces, in a 10-mile advance across muddy Hungarian plains, have deepened a flanking wedge in the German lines east of Budapest by cutting one of the two direct highways between the ancient Hungarian capital and Miskolc, northeastern anchor of the enemy front.

Seizing 11 towns and rail stations yesterday in fighting which cost the Germans and Hungarians more than 2,200 troops killed or captured, the Russians also smashed to within 16 miles east of Budapest by seizing the suburban town of Benye.

Marshal Tito, meanwhile, announced that his forces in southern Yugoslavia had smashed into the big communications center of Skoplje and opened a street battle with the Germans. Skoplje is on the Athens-Belgrade railroad, complete capture of which would give the Allies a Mediterranean lend-lease supply route to Russia some 6,000 miles shorter than the one now in use across Iran.

Moscow front dispatches and Berlin reports said fighting east of Budapest was mounting in fury, with both sides sending in fresh tank and infantry reinforcements. One Berlin commentator said the Russians' main objective was to drive up east of Budapest and achieve a junction with other Soviet forces moving southward across Czechoslovakia, thus trapping the Germans holding northeastern Hungary and eastern Czechoslovakia.

Moscow's broadcast war bulletins announced that the main fighting yesterday was on a 30-mile front extending from Benye northeast to the town of Jaszapati.

Jaszapati, on one of the two direct highways running 92 miles northeast from Budapest to Hungary's seventh city of Miskolc, was seized by Russian cavalry after a 10-mile advance which also placed them 10 miles east of the stronghold of Jaszbereny, 31 miles from Budapest.

A Berlin broadcast said the Russians had broken into Jaszbereny.

Berlin claimed that the drive into Jaszbereny, a four-way junction of highways linking the German front, was checked and that 33 Russian tanks were destroyed by Nazi Tiger tanks and assault guns.

Third Metz Fort Seized; Nazis Falling Back to Core

LONDON Tuesday, Nov. 14.—(AP)—Three of Metz's 22 forts—one of them a keystone in the southern defenses of the citadel—have fallen with astonishing speed to U. S. Third Army troops who stormed through snow and bitter cold all along a 40-mile front. The Germans yesterday ceded without a struggle the subterranean Fort L'Aisne, one of nine main forts guarding the city five miles to the south, and two nearby smaller fortifications, indicating they were falling back into the city's inner defenses.

(The Germans began withdrawing from the Metz area yesterday, the United Press reported.)

Meanwhile, the wheeling movement southeast of Metz pressed on up to four miles to within 15 miles of the Saar border, heightening the peril of encirclement to the city.

STUBBORN FORT

Fort L'Aisne is a series of underground fortresses similar to Fort Driant, southwest of Metz across the Moselle river, which the Third Army tried in vain to capture.

Pressing their head-on attack against Metz, the doughboys captured the village of Corny, only four and one-half miles southwest of Metz on the east bank of the Moselle across from Fort Driant.

The first indication that Field Marshal Gen. Karl Rudolf Gerd von Rundstedt may not try to hold Metz came in a broadcast early today from the German commander's headquarters in the west.

"Certainly, Metz is being fanatically defended," the broadcast said, "but Metz has fulfilled its task already during the months of September and October when it stopped the advance of the Third Army and thus enabled the Germans to deepen their front zone fortifications."

BLOODLESS CAPTURE

Fort Verny, one of the smaller outworks, five and one-half miles south of Metz but heavily built and deeply dug in, was captuured without a shot as the Germans fell back on the network of fortifications girdling the city. Four towns six to seven miles south of Metz also were taken.

Despite the mud, which for a time slowed the Third Army on this sixth day of Gen. Patton's new offensive, Sixth Armored Division tanks in an advance of up to four miles drove into Many and Tricourt, 15 miles south of the Saar frontier.

Deepening their bridgehead across the Nied river southeast of Metz to at least four miles, these forces were fighting within

Drive on Jaywalking Launched as Deaths Rise

By KEELER McCARTNEY.

Traffic Judge Luke Arnold has issued a sharp warning to "careless walkers," following an announcement by the police traffic bureau that fatalities for the year already have reached 35—two more than were killed during all of 1943—and that 10 deaths were blamed on jaywalking.

Of the 35 traffic deaths in Atlanta this year, a total of 17 were pedestrians.

In his statement, Arnold pointed out that jaywalking is rapidly taking its place as the greatest cause of traffic deaths in Atlanta. He added that the police department and the courts should cooperate in striking hardest "where it will do the most good."

"I would be in favor of raising the jaywalking fine from the present $1 and cost to a minimum of $10 and cost and a maximum of $25 and cost if that will save lives," Arnold declared.

GREATEST MENACE

"During the last 18 months I have been very stern with 'careless walkers' because I could see that they were the greatest menace to public safety. One person crosses on a red light and a dozen others will follow him. The same is true of crossing in the middle of a block."

Police Chief M. A. Hornsby and his assistant, G. Neal Ellis, had no comment on the percentage of jaywalking fatalities. Hornsby did say that "very few" jaywalking cases were being made, but he added that Atlanta is still holding her own among other larger cities for traffic deaths.

The latest jaywalking death was recorded yesterday when John Sims, 50, Negro, of 260 Green street, succumbed to injuries he received November 4 when he walked into the side of a moving automobile on Edgewood avenue.

Radio Patrolmen W. D. Nash and R. R. Bradford booked a case of "reckless driving—accident" against the driver of the car, listed as J. R. Bell, 17, of 1084 Colquitt avtenue, N. E. They also charged Sims with jaywalking immediately after the accident.

GREAT AS DRUNK DRIVING

Arnold has repeatedly argued that "careless walking" is fully as great a menace to public safety as drunk driving.

"I do not imply that drunk driving is to be upheld," he explained. "Anyone brought before me for driving under the influence of liquor will be fined, or, if the seriousness of the case warrants, will go straight to the chaingang.

"However, I cannot condone jaywalking—which is responsible for the greatest percentage of our deaths—and concentrate solely on drunk drivers. They both are guilty of serious crimes and their punishment should be dealt out accordingly."

Several drives have been launched against jaywalking in Atlanta during recent years, but each time a storm of protest at police headquarters from indignant citizens cut short the campaigns.

Old-timers look upon a jaywalking drive as "political dynamite." Traffic officers are reluctant to make such cases unless they are assured that they will be backed up by city officials and public sentiment.

Partly Cloudy Weather Will Stay With Us

Partly cloudy with mild temperatures is the forecast of the Weather Bureau, at the Municipal airport, for the Atlanta area today.

The high figure for yesterday was 67 degrees at 4 p. m. and the low 42 at 8 a. m.

Ammunition Crisis Faced by Eisenhower

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—(AP)—Undersecretary of War Patterson reported today that Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower "has an imperative need for much more artillery ammunition than we are producing."

He told a news conference that troops on the Western Front are firing 35 days' planned supply of heavy artillery ammunition in 10 days and there are no reserves in this country. That implied a tremendous drain on ammunition stockpiled in Europe.

All such material produced here is being shipped overseas immediately.

"Although our production of artillery ammunition has tripled since the beginning of this year the needs of our armed forces have gone up even faster," Patterson said.

"The amount of ammunition which has been used in the campaigns of western Europe, especially in the major offensives, has been staggering.

If Gen. Eisenhower's operations are to receive adequate support, it is necessary to fire four to five thousand pounds of ammunition every minute, 24 hours a day. This means 3,600 tons of ammunition per day."

U. S. Sub Is Destroyed To Prevent Its Capture

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—(AP) The Navy announced today the submarine Darter was destroyed by its own crew to prevent capture by the enemy after it had run aground in an undisclosed area.

All the complement of 65 officers and men survived unharmed and escaped to an advanced naval base. The year-old 1,525-ton vessel was the thirty-third submarine lost by the United States fleet since Pearl Harbor.

B-29 Flow Is Menaced By Strike in Jersey

PATERSON, N. J., Nov. 13.—(AP)—All five north Jersey plants of the Wright Aeronautical Corporation, employing about 40,000 workers, were shut down tonight in the wake of a strike today of 1,800 supervisors.

A spokesman for the striking Wright Aircraft Supervision Association (unaffiliated) said the members "are not going back to work for Wright" and would remain out "until the Army takes over," while spokesmen for two other unions charged they had been "locked out" by the company.

Supervisors' Union President David Newcomb said the strike was voted yesterday because of alleged company violations of the status quo through transfers of supervisors, pending War Labor Board settlement of union requests for a grievance procedure, "a voice in wage schedules" and seniority, which resulted in an unauthorized six-day strike and shutdown last September.

A company official said the strike was "in direct defiance" of a stop-gap WLB decision last week on the dispute. A telegraphed plea to resume work, sent by the

FUGITIVE PILOT

Stole Plane, Bailed Out; Nailed in Bar

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 13.—(UP)—Robert C. Kaslow, former lieutenant in the air forces, who escaped from Craig Field, Alabama, Friday night in a stolen trainer plane, was apprehended by agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation today in the cocktail lounge of a New Orleans hotel.

At the time of his apprehension, Kaslow was dressed in the full uniform of a second lieutenant in the United States Air Forces. He was accompanied by a local New Orleans girl, about 25 years old, whom he had known for approximately one year.

The capture of Kaslow culminated a nation-wide search for the flier who broke out of his prison cell at Craig Field Friday night. Kaslow was being held at Craig Field pending transfer to Atlanta penitentiary where he had been sentenced to a term of 30 years by an Army court-martial. The 30 year sentence was a reduction of a previous life sentence given him by the Army. The Army had court-martialed him and found him guilty of violating eight articles of

Home Rule For Georgia Counties Voted for New State Constitution

The state constitution redrafters have voted to grant home rule for Georgia's cities and counties in the new constitution.

The commission heard Gov. Arnall say he is not "a candidate for re-election," and to urge them to amend the constitution so that a governor could succeed himself.

After hearing from the Governor, the commission voted 8 to 7 in favor of this amendment.

The commission, meeting here yesterday, also voted for a statewide merit system, but opposed a constitutional penal board. The group reversed its previous plan to appoint the state school superintendent—voting 8 to 5 to keep him an elective officer.

Long a source of despute in the state legislature, the home rule proposal was passed by an 8-to-7 vote by the commission, at the request of Gov. Arnall. The Governor said the plan as presented yesterday will be revised to obtain better support from the commission.

The home rule plan gives cities and counties the power to "adopt, alter, repeal or amend any law relating to its organization, composition, structure, offices, authority and power not inconsistent with the general law."

Governing bodies of the city or county may submit the local legislation to the people for ratification 60 days before the election is to be held. If it is approved by the people, it becomes law within five days and certified copy of the bill is filed with the secretary of state.

The people may request an election for local legislation by a petition of 10 per cent of the registered voters of the city or county.

The secretary of state shall publish annually the charter amendments of all towns and cities.

Voting first for the constitutional penal board, the commission later yesterday reversed itself when several members declared that the one-man system under the supervision of Gov. Arnall is working better than the board plan, and urged that penal reform not be

HAS ANYBODY SEEN STRAY DACHSHUND? ITS MISTRESS, 3, IS ILL FROM GRIEF

Grieving for her strayed black and brown dachshund puppy, three-year-old Eleanor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter H. Miller, of 324 Montgomery street, Decatur, is running a fever that may endanger her life. The elongated, low-slung puppy, answering the name of "Pet," was last seen wearing a brown leather collar bearing a Decatur veterinarian's license tag.

The physician says Eleanor's high fever is attributable to her grief and that the return of the puppy is the best medicine he can prescribe. The child is to undergo an operation tomorrow and her parents urge anyone knowing "Pet's" whereabouts to let them know immediately.

NAZI NAVAL PRIDE SUNK—The "unsinkable" pride of the German navy—the Tirpitz—today wallows on the bottom of the Tromso fjord, north of Narvik on the coast of Norway, foundering after three direct deck hits from British Lancaster six-ton earthquake bombs. This view was snapped as the proud man o' war rode at anchor in a Norse fjord. The Tirpitz was a 41,000-ton vessel.

Need for Blood Grows, Atlanta Is Reminded

Atlantans yesterday were urged to realize the cost of men and blood for American advances in the various war theaters. They learned anew the need for blood plasma to further campaigns, particularly in the South Pacific.

From Washington, Basil O'Connor, chairman, American National Red Cross, issued a plea for more whole blood and blood plasma. Since the Atlanta center takes blood only for plasma, the local donor center revealed expectations for more demands to fill plasma quotas of other centers which now are detailed to handle whole blood.

The plan of flying whole blood to the South Pacific, announced yesterday by the Navy, was implemented by instructions to Red Cross blood donor centers to make every effort to maintain quotas, O'Connor said.

Inauguration of the Pacific whole blood program brought to seven the number of type "O" centers in addition to plasma-taking stations. All are working toward a quota of 100,000 pints of plasma per week, he announced.

About 25 per cent of the persons who have made appointments with blood donor centers throughout the country either fail to report for their date, or telephone to concel it, O'Connor said. Similar negligence was cited in Atlanta by blood donor center officers.

"There can be no doubt of the fact that optimism as to the early conclusion of the war has been largely responsible for this decrease in interest," O'Connor said, "whereas the truth is that more plasma and whole blood are needed when our armed forces are advancing than when the war news is at a low ebb. If people could only see the miraculous effect of plasma in saving lives, our 31 blood donor centers and their mobile units would always have a long waiting list of donors."

SOLDIERS IN EUROPE COMPLAIN U. S. FAILING IN BLOOD DONATIONS

PARIS, Nov. 13.—(AP)—The Army newspaper Stars and Stripes in an editorial today declared "there just isn't enough blood being given by the folks back home" for the blood bank in the Eurpean theater of operations.

Under the editorial, headlined "It Takes Blood to Win a War," appeared a picture of British girls donating blood with the caption: "Stack this against what medical headquarters reports about blood shipments from the United States to the ETO."

The editorial went on to say that medics have a quota of five pints of blood for every GI in combat and thus far they have been able to store up only two pints for every man in action.

"For the lack of that blood—some suffering GI—many suffering GI's—will die," the editorial stated.

"Strangely enough blood donations in the States rise when the war news is bad and fall when it gets good," it continued. "But when the war news is good is when the blood is needed, because it takes blood—lots of blood—to make it good."

The editorial concluded "all honor to these patriotic British girls," adding "American patriots please copy."

Ernie Pyle Is Awarded Humane Letters Degree

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., Nov. 13. (INS)—Indiana University today bestowed the honorary degree of doctor of humane letters upon Ernie Pyle, Hoosier-born war correspondent and columnist for The Atlanta Constitution. Pyle, an alumnus of Indiana, was termed a "soldier, fighting for the freedom of mankind."

Murray-Kilgore Bill May Be Revised

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—(AP)—A surprise move to revive a modified version of the Murray-Kilgore bill for more liberal postwar benefits for unemployed developed today in congress.

Backers of the bill are sounding out members of the Senate Military Committee to determine whether they would support another attempt to pass the legislation which congress rejected after a bitter fight three months ago.

The administration's election victories furnished the main impetus. Another factor was the campaign stand of Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, pledging Republican support of a broadened social security program.

Three WLB Members Ask To Quit Soon

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—(AP)—Three of the four men who have had the decisive vote in wartime labor disputes want to quit when they wind up their work on the current wage control controversy.

They are Chairman William H. Davis, Vice Chairman George W. Taylor and Dr. Frank P. Graham, public member, of the War Labor Board.

There was no indication that any policy issue lay back of the resignations, all presented weeks ago and announced today. Personal and business reasons were advanced in each case.

Chairman Davis, on his 65th birthday August 29, asked to be relieved by January 1, to permit him to return to his patent law practice in New York.

Vice Chairman Taylor asked that President Roosevelt make his departure possible around December 1. Dr. Taylor is the real author of the board's "Little Steel" formula, wage control policy now under attack by organized labor.

Dr. Graham wants to leave after the current crucial deliberations of the board.

The board at the moment is in the midst of one of its most important phases—preparing a report to the President on the status of the wage earner in the face of increased living costs.

Dewey's Golf Off But Vacation Zeal Soars at Sea Isle

By PAUL WARWICK,
Constitution Staff Writer

SEA ISLAND BEACH, Ga., Nov. 13.—Slightly off his game, insofar as technical excellence is concerned, but with a true vacationist's fervor, Gov. Dewey, of New York, today carried out his threat of making golf the piece de resistance of his rest period here for the next two weeks.

On the famous old St. Simons course he managed 18 holes this morning, in company with Carl T. (Pat) Hoga, of New York city: Paul E. Lockwood, his secretary, and George Boll, of Sea Island, who completed the foursome.

During the afternoon, he fulfilled another of his promises to eschew politics when he engaged in a long romp on the beach with his two sons, Tommy and Johnny. They, with Mrs. Dewey, accompanied the defeated Republican presidential candidate to this resort.

As far as any one was able to determine, the Governor was sticking manfully to his pledge of abstinence from any political talk during his stay here.

Aside from a bit of damage to his golf game caused by the layoff necessitated by his effort to unseat and unfrock President Roosevelt, the Republican nominee avows himself in excellent health and already greatly recuperated from his arduous campaign.

Georgia is a favored vacation spot with the governor, who declares that he knows of no better spot for restoration of energies than the seclusion of these islands, with their peaceful charm.

Drug Club Studies Modernization

Modernization of stores and cooperation in the south between drug wholesalers and retailers keynoted the two-day meeting of the South Atlantic Drug Club at the Piedmont hotel.

James W. Roberts, of Norfolk, recently elected president of the National Wholesale Druggists' Association, principal speaker at the opening session, declared that surplus war medical supplies will be disposed of through normal trade channels at prevailing prices.

He further added the government surpluses of drugs and health supplies will be made available to civilians in an orderly manner and the Treasury will closely observe the effects of the releases.

Meetings of the organization will continue today. Participating in the program will be A. E. Greer, of Greer, S. C., Frank W. Week, of Jacksonville; I. A. Solomons, of Savannah.

Senior Scouts Plan Council-Wide Party

Senior Boy Scouts of the Atlanta Area Council formulated plans last night for a council-wide senior Scout party, which will be held during the Boy Scout anniversary week in February, 1945.

Meeting at Ellen Rice tea room for a rally banquet, the Scouts saw a Technicolor film, "Senior Scouting," which was presented by Director Ray Sweazey. Ernest Rogers was guest speaker and Explorer Scout Alton Colcord was master of ceremonies.

Botanists' Meeting

The Georgia Botanical Society will hold a dinner meeting at 6:30 p. m. today at the Atlanta Woman's Club, to be followed by a program. Reservations may be made by calling the club.

The first will be at 230 West Mitchell street at 4 p. m. for white employes, and the second at Rush Memorial church, Parsons and Chestnut streets, at 7:30 p. m. for colored employes. All meetings are open to the public, and interested gardeners have been extended an invitation.

Mohr's final meeting will be at 4 p. m. tomorrow at the Mitchell street place for white gardeners.

CONSTITUTION'S POLL

Assembly Favors Merit System; Divides on Second Term Issue

Editor's Note: This is another of a series of articles showing sentiment of Georgia's 1945 legislators.

By M. L. ST. JOHN.

A statewide merit system has the overwhelming support of Georgia's new legislature which convenes in January, but the solons are undecided on the wisdom of drafting Gov. Arnall for a second term.

The senators and representatives taking part in a Constitution poll are against changing the constitution to permit all four-year governors to serve unlimited terms. As a general practice, they believe the no-succession clause should be retained.

But they like Gov. Arnall, and are divided over whether an exception should be made in his case.

FOR MERIT SYSTEM

The senate went practically "all out" on the merit system, which Gov. Arnall has termed the "heart of the new constitution." The constitution drafting commission yesterday proposed such a system, with 90 per cent of those participating in the poll favoring a civil service system for all nonpolicy forming employes, its adoption should be assured. Five per cent of the remaining group favored a "limited merit system", leaving only five per cent outright against a merit system.

The house poll, as yet incomplete, showed 78 per cent favoring a merit system; 8 per cent against it, and 14 per cent undecided or noncommittal.

The question of gubernatorial succession was divided into two parts. The legislators were asked if they approved permitting a four-year term governor to succeed himself. If their answer was "no", they were asked if they would make an exception in the case of Gov. Arnall. There were several changes. However, some voted "yes" to the general question, and then added that exceptions should be made for no one.

ON GENERAL QUESTION

On the general question, the senate opposed re-election by a vote of 72 per cent to 14 per cent for unlimited service and 14 per cent undecided. The vote was close on the Arnall exception, with the senate opposing making an exception by a vote of 50 per cent to 41 per cent—with 9 per cent being undecided.

The house opposed the general practice, 52 per cent to 36 per cent, and 12 per cent undecided. But it switched its vote on the exception, to favor Arnall for a second term. The vote was 50 per cent for re-election; 29 per cent against, and 21 per cent undecided.

While most solons merely answered "yes" or "no" on the merit system question, a few elaborated to warn that caution be exercised in setting up the program. Sen. Wallace E. Harrell, of Quitman, said the system would have to be properly safeguarded against making lifetime jobs for incompetent employes or unnecessary personnel. His sentiments were echoed in the house by Rep. Luther Bloodworth, of Bibb, who favored a "real merit bill, but not one whose primary purpose is to perpetuate employes in office." A. D. Williams, of Gwinnett, urged an age limit and very strict examinations. Rep. Charles A. Pannell, of Murray, said he would prefer seeing some governor put a merit system in his first year rather than his last ones, as it would then be fairer to all concerned.

Limitation of a four-year governor's terms of office will be deleted, under orders of the constitution commission.

The group yesterday voted, 8 to 7, to permit governors to seek re-election.

Its vote was taken after Governor Arnall declared: "I am not a candidate for re-election, but I think the people should have the right to elect whom they please, as many times as they please."

Frank Foley, of Columbus; Judge Will Smith, of Nashville; Editor R. E. L. Majors, of Claxton, and State Auditor B. E. Thrasher Jr., of Atlanta, spoke for concelling constitutional limitation.

URGES COMPETENCY

Rep. J. W. C. Lewis, of Hancock, advocated departmental heads being appointed by the Governor and confirmed by the senate, and then added that "competency, not politics, should control tenure of subordinates."

Among opponents of a merit system was Rep. J. M. Thrash, of Coffee county, who explained: "I think the head of any department should be permitted to select his own employes. By doing this he can get perfect efficiency and co-operation."

The governor-succession brought forth many comments. Sen. N. G. Slaughter, of Athens, lauded Gov. Arnall, declaring "I believe Georgia will make more progress than we have in the last quarter of a century if he is given four years more."

Rep. George Strickland, of Upson, urged that Arnall be drafted for a second term.

Rep. C. A. Miller Jr., of Decatur county, said: "I believe that this issue should be left with the vote of the people, and if they see fit to elect a governor for more than one term, and we have one that is of the type we now have, we should permit him to succeed himself."

FAVORS SECOND TERM

Rep. F. M. Cates, of Burke, said: "If we have a good governor, why not keep him? After all, it is left to the vote of the people."

Rep. C. R. Mason, of Morgan, said he probably would favor taking the limit off gubernatorial terms. However, he said that, as much as he admires the Arnall administration, he would not favore making a special issue for any special governor.

"This is not a fair question to politicians," said Rep. Frank S. Twitty, of Mitchell, in commenting on the second phase of the question, "but I am not a politician." He votes "no" on both parts of the question, stating that the people of his county want to retain the present constitutional limitation.

Mrs. John B. Guerry, of Macon county, recalled that the 1941 legislature passed the four-year term with the understanding that the incumbent should not succeed himself. Rep. J. S. O'Sheal, of Worth county, voted "no" to both questions, adding "this would break down the law." Rep. Paul S. Etheridge, of Fulton, said Arnall has made a wonderful governor, but the four-year limit should be retained without exceptions.

OPPOSES CHANGE

"I think Gov. Arnall is making a splendid governor, but I feel that the four-year regulation is just being tried out and it would be a mistake to make a change before it gets going," commented Rep. Jack Williams, of Ware. He opposed making any exceptions, but said if any were made they should be made for Arnall.

Voting to take the limit off the governor's office both generally and specifically, Rep. J. H. Williams, of Coffee, suggested that the constitution revisors omit this "on general principals" from the constitution, adding "I believe that the legislature would overwhelmingly support this revision." He said that democracy demands the services of any official as long as the majority wants his services.

frozen into the constitution until it is "out of the experimental stage.'

The commission voted unanimously for establishment of a merit system for non-policy-forming state employes. It will have the legislature prescribe the powers and duties of the State Personnel Board, however, rather than write such regulations into the new constitution.

Gov. Arnall and Mrs. Leonard Haas, of Atlanta, spoke in favor of a constitutional penal board, urging the penal reform board be stabilized for the future. The Governor suggested a 10-man board, with one representative from each congressional district, appointed by the chief executive, for staggered terms of seven years each.

Opposing the constitutional board were Speaker Roy Harris, of Augusta; Representatives J. W. C. Culpepper, of Fayette; Charlie Gowan, of Glynn, and State Auditor, B. E. Thrasher Jr., of Atlanta.

Gowan pointed out the Arnall penal reform program could not have been accomplished if the old prison board had been protected by the constitution. He said the present program should be the responsibility of the governor.

"We've got a pretty good setup now," observed Culpepper. "Don't put back a board. The board plan proved a failure before. We are faring better under one man than we would under 10."

Thrasher said the practice of creating constitutional boards is "getting away from us," stating that the commission probably would be asked next to create a constitutional highway board and a constitutional health board.

Judge Will Smith, of Nashville, asked why have a board—why not just make the director of corrections a constitutional officer?

The commission voted to give preference to veterans for state jobs.

To prevent freezing out servicemen and women from state jobs, the commission adopted Gov. Arnall's suggestion that examinations for permanent positions be delayed until after the war.

While the commission made establishment of the merit system mandatory, it left as permissive the establishment of a retirement system.

The Georgia Association of Real Estate Boards asked that the new constitution relieve real estate property of the ad valorem tax in so far as that tax is levied for purposes of state revenue. It asked that an overall limitation of 35 mills be placed on the power of political subdivisions to levy ad valorem taxes. And it asked that each county establish a board of tax adjustment and appeals.

"Until comparatively recently, the primary form of taxation in almost all the states has been the ad valorem tax or direct property tax, levied at a uniform rate upon all the property, real and personal, within each city, town or other taxing district," said Charles Bloch, of Macon, representing the real estate group. "With the birth and growth of other forms of taxation, notably the income tax, this ancient method of taxation has resulted in double taxation."

Delegations from Columbus, Macon and Savannah urged the commission to retain a constitutional amendment enabling servicemen to obtain divorces in Georgia if they have been stationed in camps in this state for 12 months. The commission voted to retain this provision.

Sen. J. H. Kennon, of Adel, asked creation of two additional senatorial districts. The commission opposed this.

Gov. Arnall said he would ask raises for judges at today's session of the commission.

WLB at Washington, was described by Newcomb as "ridiculous" because, he alleged, the company was "continuing to disregard WLB directives that they maintain the status quo."

Miss Helen F. Harper, local vice president of the Engineers and Salaried Employes Association, and Albert Capone, local president of the United Automobile Workers (CIO), both charged the company had shut down the plants and, Capone said, "is making us take part by locking out our members."

In a statement today the company said it had notified Army officials of the "gravity of the situation."

The statement said "production of Cyclone 18-cylinder aircraft engines for the B-29 Superfortress was crippled today" and added, "we will be forced to close down vital departments as soon as the ratio of supervisors to production workers becomes too far out of balance."

Newcomb announced the union had voted to throw picket lines around the five plants and had wired President Roosevelt for intervention in its behalf.

The union has been seeking recognition as bargaining agent for the supervisors and a series of demands affecting their wages and hours since last summer, leading to last week's regional WLB hearing in New York.

Less Butter, More Beef, '45 Outlook

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—(AP)—Little change in civilian food supplies for 1945 is seen by the Department of Agriculture, even if the European war is ended.

Civilian consumption of food this year has been running about 7 per cent above the prewar years of 1935-39. The department said non-civilian requirements will continue to take a "substantial portion of the total food supplies throughout 1945."

A thumbnail outlook for 1945 shows:

1. Supplies of beef, turkeys and some fruits may be larger.

2. Supplies of pork, potatoes, butter and possibly chickens and some fresh vegetables may be smaller.

This year each person is eating an average of between 140 and 145 pounds of meat. Next year this will fall but will probably still be above the 126-pound prewar average of 1935-39.

Irentification of enemy dead from patrol clashes with the First Cavalry Division definitely has classified the Jap soldiers, presumably among recent reinforcements, as being among the imperial army's crack units.

Consolidating their positions along the Mt. Cabungangan-Mt. Lao line in the Pinamopoan-Ormoc sector, a detachment of dismounted cavalrymen ambushed and annihilated a 10-man Nip patrol dientified as of the Japanese Army's First Infantry Division, a unit rated among the "Son of Heaven's" best.

Using infiltration tactics, the Japanese have succeeded in sending small groups through the broken fighting line to harass the American rear, but no serious threat is involved in these operations, front line dispatches said.

Tokyo reported that American warplanes, presumably carrier-based, bombed Manila this morning and afternoon, and that a B-29 Superfortress flew over the Japanese homeisland of Honshu, on which Tokyo is situated, in the fifth of a series of reconnaissance flights apparently designed to test Japanese defenses for imminent large-scale air assaults.

Tokyo made the usual propaganda claim that American bombs destroyed churches and homes and spoke as "casualties among innocent civilians."

Another enemy broadcast claimed that Japanese warplanes sank a U. S. battleship and a transport in Leyte gulf on Sunday and damaged seven transports.

NAZIS DENY HE'S ILL, BUT—

Gestapo Reported Plotting To Kill Hitler as Martyr

LONDON, Nov. 13.—(UP)—German radios, attempting to end rumors that Adolf Hitler was ill, incapacitated by injury, insane or dead, said today he was in excellent health and remained in possession of the fullest energies.

But the rumors continued—including one that the Gestapo might blow up Hitler's Berchtesgaden headquarters, and him with it, to make him a German god and a symbol calculated to inspire future generations of Germans to try again to enslave the world.

Apparently the stimulus given speculation when Hitler himself did not read a manifesto issued in his name Sunday, calling on Germans to fight to the end, impelled the German propaganda ministry to give resasurance that there was nothing wrong with him.

"IN FINE HEALTH"

A German Transocean Agency broadcast quoted "competent quarters" as saying emphatically, "in reply to rumors spread by Allied sources about Adolf Hitler having fallen ill," that he was in fine health.

"The fact that Hitler did not read his proclamation himself to the German people does by no means constitute proof that the Fuehrer is not enjoying excellent health and fullest energy," Transocean said. "Adolf Hitler has never read proclamations in person but has always had them read by his ministers."

Discussing the swearing in Sunday of members of the new German people's storm units—who incidentally took the oath to Hitler personally—Rudolf Semmler, broadcasting in a Nazi home service program, said:

"NOT ON LAST LEGS"

"Within a measureable space of time the question will arise: Do we capitulate before superior enemy odds in men and material or will they capitulate as they see our unshakeable determination? Millions of volkssturm men yesterday provided the answer. They are not an army of invalids, children and old men and their weapons are not sickles or sticks but light and heavy machineguns and antitank guns. We are by no means on our last legs. . . . Our leaders will not let the German people down as did the cowardly government of 1918."

The suggestion that the Gestapo might star Hitler in a real life Gotterdammerung, or twilight of the gods, came in British press dispatches from Stockholm. It was argued that Nazis care not so much to preserve Hitler as to preserve the Hitler legend.

Reports continued that Hitler was insane. One rumor had it that Hitler's mind had been slipping since Stalingrad and that the July 20 revolt against him put over the edge.

The American Broadcasting Station in Europe helped spread the Hitler rumors Monday, quoting London newspapers as saying that it was "extremely likely that Hitler must be incapacitated."

"From information reaching Stockholm in the last few weeks it appears indisputable that Hitler is no longer capable of attending to his official duties, and that Himmler has assumed the virtual dictatorship of the Reich," ABSIE said.

"Hitler, a very sick man, has had a very severe mental breakdown. He can not be relied on to be normal for any scheduled public appearance, not even a radio speech. Hitler is not now mentioned in the German press. Not even pictures taken by his personal photographer Hoffman appear."

war, including forgery, assault with intent to kill, larceny and desertion.

Kaslow, whose home is at Johnston City, N. Y., at first refused to talk, but finally broke down and told his story.

Shortly before 10 p. m. Friday he escaped through the ventilator of his guardhouse cell and jumped to the ground. He made his way to a room where he knew his uniform was kept and, after donning the uniform he went to the parachute storeroom and took a parachute. He then went to the flight line to pick out an airplane for escape. He tried several planes before he found one with sufficient gasoline for the trip he was planning.

Then, without authority from the flight control tower, he started the plane and took off. He flew on the beam to Mobile, Ala., and from Mobile picked up the beam to New Orleans, the FBI said. When he was over the Higgins Aircraft Plant, at Michoud, about 10 miles north of New Orleans, he decided to jump and let the plane crash.

"I got cold feet the first time," he told the FBI agents, "and had to climb back up to 5,000 feet before I finally jumped. The plane crashed a short distance away and I landed in the swamp."

TORE UP CHUTE

"I tore up my parachute as I had been taught to do in training," he said, "and wrapped it around my feet and legs so I could walk better in the swamp. I walked for hours, it seemed, and swam a couple of canals. Finally I came to a big canal and decided not to swim it until it got daylight. I made a lean-to out of brush and spent the night on the bank of the canal.

"The next morning I swam the big canal and several more before I came to a road," he told the officials.

FBI officials said they learned that a man answering Kaslow's description was picked up three or four miles from the Higgins Air Field by some local citizens. At that time Kaslow was muddy and completely drenched and claimed he had just received his wings from Pensacola, Fla., and had been initiated by his comrades by being turned loose in the swamp. He was scratched and bruised and was carried to a local hotel by the men who picked him up.

Subsequent investigation by the FBI disclosed that no one meeting Kaslow's description had registered at any hotels here, but that a man who was scratched and bruised had taken a turkish bath Saturday afternoon at a local hotel. The man did not have sufficient money to pay his bill but after making a telephone call a young lady came and paid his bill and they left together. The FBI refused to divulge the girl's name.

IDENTIFIED BY RING

A "V" ring which she had on her hand made an impression on one of the employes at the hotel and this slender clue provided the lead to the jeweler in New Orleans who sold these rings. A contact with the jeweler resulted in obtaining the name and address of a young lady whose description fit that of the one who answered Kaslow's call to the hotel.

It was then learned that Kaslow and the girl had left a local bar late Monday afternoon in a taxicab so the FBI found the taxi driver and found where the couple had gone. The FBI agents quickly closed in on Kaslow and his companion and took them into custody without violence.

The young woman, who admitted to the FBI that Kaslow told her he obtained his bruises and scratches from bailing out of a plane in a parachute and landing in the swamps, is still being held by the officials for questioning. Officials would not say whether charges would be filed against the woman.

However, U. S. Atty. Herbert W. Christenberry will file charges tomorrow before the U. S. commissioner charging Kaslow with possession of a stolen Army plane in this district.

Kaslow is being held in Orleans parish prison pending his release to military authorities.

George Expects Hoyt Davis Approval in Senate Soon

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS,
Constitution Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—Returning to his office here today after an extended vacation in the state, Senator George said he had reason to believe the President might send to the senate within a short time the nomination of T. Hoyt Davis as United States district judge for the middle district of Georgia.

Mr. Davis, the present United States district attorney in the middle district, has been indorsed for the post by both Senator George and Senator Russell.

Following the indorsement of the two senators the department of justice ordered an investigation of District Attorney Davis' qualifications for the judgeship, a perfunctory procedure employed in the case of every judicial appointment. Senator George said today he understood that the report of the investigator had been favorable, although he has yet to hear from the department officially.

Mr. Davis is being urged for the post left vacant by the death during the summer of Judge Bascom Deaver, who had served in the middle district for a number of years.

Senator George returned to the capital looking in top form after a prolonged rest in his home in Vienna. He said he was not greatly surprised at the results in the recent election, but had anticipated that the President would win again by a comfortable margin.

The Georgia senator had no predictions to make as to the behavior of the new congress, which will show a solid working majority for the administration in the house. He was inclined to think that congress will go along pretty much as it has in the past, giving the President wholehearted support of war measures while differing on domestic questions, but, he added, it remained for the future to tell the whole story.

As chairman of the Senate Finance Committee and one of the main cogs in the Democratic organization of the upper chamber, Senator George does not anticipate that any new legislation of great importance will be taken up for the remainder of the present session, which resumes tomorrow. Most of the administration's legislative program will not be brought up until the new congress meets in January, he feels.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—(AP) Chairman George, Democrat, Georgia, of the senate finance committee, said today he had "a feeling" President Roosevelt soon will name Fred M. Vinson to succeed War Mobilization Director James F. Byrnes. George told newsmen he did not care to be more specific, adding that if Vinson succeeds Byrnes it is possible he will continue as economic stabilization director.

George Expects No Tax Changes in '45

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—(UP) Sen. George, Democrat, of Georgia, chairman of the tax handling Senate Finance Committee, said tonight on the eve of congress' return that he sees little prospect of any substantial change in tax rates during the 1945 calendar year.

Reviewing legislative prospects for the remaining short term of the 78th congress and the first few months of the new congress which meets January 3, he told a press confrence:

"Prospects on any substantial change in taxes for 1945 are extremely remote. We may perfect and pass legislation during 1945 but the effective date on any general revision will not be before January 1, 1946."

He said the tax committees would begin immediately to lay the ground work for a postwar tax program, possibly holding hearings to receive proposals for revisions, but he doubted that rates and changes would be decided upon before the end of the war in Europe is more nearly in sight.

George did not, however, rule out the possibility that the payroll deductions for social security may be doubled January 1, 1945.

Ravenna To Fall Without Fight?

ROME, Nov. 13.—(AP)—British Eighth Army troops have crossed the Ghiaia canal, next to the last water obstacle before the German-held port of Ravenna on the Adriatic coast, and there were indications tonight that the Nazis were preparing to evacuate the city.

After crossing the canal, the British moved into a forest only four miles south of Ravenna.

Patrols thrusting ahead of the main Allied force today reported they saw no sign of German troops. To the southwest, however, the Nazis held to their positions on the north bank of the Ghiaia canal to prevent the Eighth army from bypassing Ravenna.

Liuchow's Scuttling Erases U. S. Air Power in East China

CHUNGKING, Nov. 13.—(UP)—The 14th U. S. Air Force disclosed today that it had destroyed its Liuchow airbase, last important group of Allied air fields in eastern China, under steady pressure of fast-moving Japanese troops closing in from the northeast and southeast.

The loss of Liuchow virtually throws the 14th back on its Kunming base over 400 miles further west, with only small fields at Kweiyang and Nanning from which to carry on its heroic efforts to bolster China's ground forces.

The Chinese defeats at Liuchow and Kweilin give Japan one of her greatest strategic victories in the China war. The 14th has been driven far back from the China coast; Chinese ground troops will have less air support; Japan can now consolidate in east China, and a land-route from Shanghai to Singapore may be opened soon.

Kweiyang is nearly 250 miles northwest of Liuchow in Kweichow province, and Nanning is some 130 air miles to the southeast. Nanning already is threatened by Japanese forces moving west from the Liuchow area and by another group moving from the West river district. Other strong Japanese forces have been reported poised on the Indo-China border to the south.

The decision to blow up the Liuchow base was reached when Japanese planes established themselves within three-minute striking distance by air, depriving the weary 14th pilots and ground crews of all hope of even a minute's warning of Japanese attacks. Until the last the American pilots carried out two and three missions daily.

Liuchow obviously was doomed when the Japanese executed an "end run," bypassing Kweilin's elaborate defenses south of the city and rolling toward Liuchow, 90 miles to the southwest, sometimes advancing 20 miles daily.

Planes of the 14th continued to take off on strafing and bombing missions from a field at Liuchow already mined for destruction. Crews lived in hotels stacked with gasoline drums awaiting the order to apply the torch. The order came late in the afternoon of Tuesday.

Throughout the night flames licked the sky as the gasoline, laboriously flown over "The Hump" from India, blazed furiously. Explosions shook the earth as the 14th wrote off another base built with millions of American dollars and the sweat of thousands of coolies working with crude equipment.

Jap Column Strikes For Isham, Is Report

CHUNGKING, Nov. 13.—(AP)—The Japanese drive to clear American air power out of southeastern China appeared near completion tonight, with the Chinese high command reporting only localized street fighting in Liuchow, former site of the last main U. S. air base in that area.

The Chinese communique said another Japanese force, which had cut the Kwangsi-Kweichow railway 11 miles west of Liuchow, was striking toward Ishan, 43 miles west of Liuchow, and had attacked Chinese positions only 18 miles from the town.

METZ

four miles of the enemy base at Faulquemont, 13 miles east and slightly south of Metz.

BRIDGEHEAD CONSOLIDATED

A second Nied bridgehead a few miles west was consolidated as the last of the enemy was cleared from Ancerville, 10 miles southeast of Metz. These latest successes increased to 17 miles the penetration of Metz's eastern defenses since the attack broke, November 8.

The 35th Division in a gain of one to two miles entered Marthille, 20 miles southeast of Metz and three miles west of Morhange, where the big opening battle of the first World War was fought.

American lines thus were drawn up within two or three miles of the old battleground on the west, south and east.

As the American forces driving head-on against Metz reached a point five miles to the south, the big guns of the outer forts opened up for the first time. Patrols operating around Sorbey, seven miles to the southeast, were the first to feel the weight of the forts' fire.

Hard-working American artillery also was dishing it out. Besides supporting the ground advance under the difficult conditions of bad weather, artillerymen were blazing away at every garrison town within range to drive the enemy into the fields where a shortage of tents makes bivouacs difficult for the enemy in the freezing weather.

All day long the Germans hammered away at the base of another salient 26 miles southeast of Metz which, by unofficial reports, had been thrust two miles farther north to near Bermering, 17 miles south of the Saar border.

This action was believed to be designed to keep the Americans from overrunning wooded country through which a ridge lifts its heights dominating Dieuze, important road center. The doughboys were five miles from Dieuze on both the west and north.

These counterblows, centering around the Foret de Bride et Koecking north of Dieuze, gained up to a mile. But at the same time American forces broke out of the east side of the forest to Harautcourt, 20 miles west of the communications center of Sarrebourg.

Meanwhile, the outflanking peril to Metz was heightened by U. S. infantrymen breaking across the Moselle river 12 miles north, not far from an original crossing within four miles of the German border.

The new bridgehead across the Moselle—most formidable of all the water barriers guarding Metz—was thrown across near Uckange, four miles south of Thionville, and was steadily being reinforced.

This crossing was eight miles southwest of the first bridgehead around Koenigsmacher, where the 90th Division drove the Germans back over all the ground the enemy gained in Sunday's counter-attack and solidified its positions. There was as yet no indication the bridgeheads had been merged.

The German communique said the Americans striking from the Koenigsmacher bridgehead had fought into the east half of Thionville, one of the strongpoints guarding Metz's northern approaches. Americans already hold the west half on the opposite bank of the Moselle.

Supreme headquarters said two-thirds of a fort in the Thionville sector had been captured, but the exact location was not given.

The U. S. Seventh Army on Patton's right flank fought to within a mile of St. Die, sentinel city at the entrance to one of the passes through the Vosges mountains to the Rhine. Its forces captured the villages of La Bolle and Les Moitresses, just to the west.

TIRPITZ

spiralled first in a column. Then it spread out over the ship in the shape of a mushroom.

"Afterwards there were several explosions. One of them was very big and one of my crew shouted out over the inter-com, 'she's on fire, skipper. She's on fire.'

"The fire did not seem to last very long, not more than two or three minutes, I should say. It was difficult to see exactly what was happening."

"The ship was already on its side when we came off our run," his tail gunner said.

After capsizing, the Tirpitz settled on the bottom of the shallow fjord. Only the keel and some parts of the bottom can be seen above water.

To the British air ministry went the honor of announcing the inglorious end of the Tirpitz, named after the famed Grand Adm. Alfred von Tirpitz whose unrestricted submarine warfare advocacy carried the United States into the first World War.

The Tirpitz, one of the most powerful warships in the world, had been hounded and attacked persistently, but the British navy was never able to bring her to battle. She bristled with eight 15-inch guns in two turrets, also had 12 six-inch and 16 four-inch guns, carried four planes, and a normal crew of 1,600 men.

The Germans' only other ship of this class, the Bismarck, was sunk by the Royal Navy on May 27, 1941, following a 1,700-mile chase after the Bismarck had sunk the British battle cruiser Hood between Greenland and Iceland.

Two other ships of the Tirpitz class were under construction when the war started, but they never were completed.

The Germans originally believed the Bismarck and Tirpitz were "unsinkable."

The Tirpitz was christened April 1, 1939, when Adolf Hitler, standing behind bullet-proof glass, delivered another of his derisive political speeches in the months just before ordering his troops into Poland. The ship was not completed, however, until 1941. Its keel had been laid in 1936.

Admiral Adolf von Trota, in his christening speech at the time, termed the 791-by-118-foot ship "a messenger of peace."

Much of the Tirpitz' life was spent in repair docks and in hiding. She was not ready for action until just after the Bismarck was sunk, and made only two operational sorties of consequence.

SHELLED ESTONIA

She led the shelling of Tallinn, Estonia, in the Gulf of Finland, in August, 1941, and on September 9, 1943, in company with the now dead Scharnhorst and a screening force of destroyers she raided Spitzbergen.

In July, 1942, the Tirpitz was at sea in the vicinity of a Russian convoy, but on learning of the presence of a strong force of escorting warships she returned to her lair at Narvik, Norway.

The Tirpitz and Bismarck were vessels that Hitler had planned to use as defenses against invasion, while his pocket battleships would scourge the seven seas as raiders.

Now he has left only two pocket battleships, the Scheer and the Lutzow; two eight-inch cruisers, the Hipper and the Prince Eugen, and four six-inch cruisers.

His last two 26,000-ton battleships, the Gneisenau and the Scharnhorst, have been written off within the past year. The Gneisenau was sighted by RAF planes on February 16, 1944, in the Polish port of Gdynia, her bows and gun turrets dismantled.

The Scharnhorst was sunk December 26, 1943, by the British battleship Duke of York, the cruiser Jamaica and other cruisers and destroyers.

The Tirpitz, her armor alone weighing 16,000 tons, led a ghostly existence for three years, hiding most of the time in the sheltering fjords of Norway.

2 Atlanta Stores Win Citations For Bond Work

Davison-Paxon employes have been cited at a store-wide bond rally for sales of more than $300 in bonds per employe during the fourth and fifth war loan drives. The firm was one of two in Georgia to qualify for the special Treasury Department citation. Also topping business establishments is J. P. Allen's, where a bond rally and Treasury Department award are slated for the latter part of this week.

Charles Currie, head of the fifth drive, and treasurer for the sixth, presented a Treasury Department leather plaque to Harvey L. Metcalf, Davison's war bond chairman. The award was for "distinguished service" and bears the signature of Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau.

During the fourth and fifth war loan drives, Davison's recorded $500,000 in bonds for each campaign. Employes sold $400,000 in "E" bonds during each drive, or more than 5 per cent of all "E" bonds sold in Fulton and DeKalb counties.

In order to qualify for the Treasury Department citation, war bond officials said, firms also were required to do a specified amount of advertising and to devote a designated amount of show window space to war bond promotional displays.

Captain Given Bribery Term

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—(AP)—Capt. Joseph Gould, former boxing manager, was convicted late today by a general court-martial of conspiracy of accepting bribes totaling more than $1,600 in connection with the award of Army contracts worth $1,000,000 to the Cornwall Shipbuilding Company, Inc.

He also was convicted of seeking to have Stephen Patrick (Tex) Sullivan testify falsely in his behalf, before the court-martial.

Gould was dismissed from the service, fined $12,000 and sentenced to three years at hard labor. The jury debated three hours and 25 minutes. The court-martial began at the New York port of embarkation on October 30.

The diminutive, 48-year-old Gould, who once managed ex-Heavyweight Champion James J. Braddock and a host of other boxers heard the verdict with the same outward calm he had maintained throughout the trial.

Gould was found guilty of all four specifications in the charge of violation of the 96th article of war except for one amendment.

Forrestal Declares Threat In North Atlantic Out

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—(AP)—Navy Secretary Forrestal said today the sinking of the German battleship Tirpitz removed "a definite threat to Allied operations in the north Atlantic."

Forrestal, referring to the Tirpitz as the last major fighting unit in the Nazi fleet, declared that "the British Navy and the Royal Air Force are to be congratulated for its dogged perseverance which led to the destruction of the Germans' largest warship."

49-Year-Old Club Fete

The Atlanta Woman's club yesterday celebrated its 49th birthday with a program at the clubhouse. At 1 p. m. tomorrow it will observe Georgia Products Day by giving a Georgia products dinner. Among the features will be an exhibit of canned Georgia foods arranged by a committee headed by Mrs. Ralph McGill.

Fulton, DeKalb Scouts Jump The Gun in War Bond Drive

Boy Scouts of Fulton and DeKalb counties set out yesterday to do a good deed for Uncle Sam—and for all the fighting men and women he symbolizes.

The khaki-clad youths began a two-county blanketing to give persons in 16th district homes an advance chance to buy war bonds. Previously, Scouts have solicited one week after the state campaign. This year they jump the gun with first call on potential bond investors.

Scouts have been of tremendous help during former drives, G. H. (Pup) Phillips, Civilian Defense director, said. "With a wide-open field in areas not yet canvassed, we feel the boys will produce even better results this time," he declared.

Weaver Marr, Scout executive, announced that Scouts from 150 troops will participate in the mass solicitation. He reminded persons who will be contacted by the Scouts that the boys probably will call around the dinner hour since school sessions now extend into the late afternoons.

The boys will take pledges for bonds, turn them over to their Scout leaders, who in turn will give the pledges to Marr's headquarters, on Auburn avenue. Scout officials will contact Phillips who will give the pledge to zone directors, and wardens will call on the promised purchaser.

In addition to handling Scout pledges, further plans have been made for air raid wardens participation in the drive. The Constitution will sponsor a bond selling campaign similar to the "block-busters" used in the fourth and fifth war loan drives. The group will be known as the Third Army. Details will be announced this week.

No quota has been set for the Scouts, Marr said. "They will solicit throughout the two counties, and, in addition to striving to sell as many bonds as possible for the Fulton-DeKalb drive, they will place particular interest on a special job assigned them by the U. S. Treasury Department," he announced.

All Scouts who buy bonds themselves and sell at least one or more bonds in their family will receive a certificate from the Treasury Department. Citations also will be awarded troops which sell 100 per cent, Marr said.

Organization Planned By War Bond Speakers

An organization meeting of the Speakers' Bureau for the Sixth War Loan Drive will be held at 12:30 p. m. today at the Ansley hotel. Dr. Pierce Harris and L. D. Burns Jr. will speak.

Twelve veterans, now stationed at Lawson General Hospital, will attend the session. These men will speak before numerous bond gatherings during the Sixth War Loan, which begins November 20.

Christianity Called Hope Of New Postwar World

By LOUIE D. NEWTON.

"The hope of the postwar world will be the commandos of Christ," declared Dr. J. B. McLaurin, secretary of the Canadian Baptist Foreign Mission Board, Toronto, upon his arrival in Atlanta for two addresses at the Georgia Baptist Convention this week. Dr. McLaurin speaks tonight on "The Adequacy of the Gospel," and Wednesday noon on "Facing Our Responsibility."

Born in India, where his Scotch father, John McLaurin, and his Irish mother spent their lives in establishing the work of the Canadian Baptist mission field at Cocanada, Dr. McLaurin spent 30 years of his life there, returning to America five years ago to attend the Baptist World Alliance in Atlanta, and remaining in Canada as secretary of the Canadian board.

"Nothing less than New Testament Christianity can meet a confused and bewildered world in this global struggle of conflicting ideologies," declared the distinguished Briton. "Hatred is rampant. I have witnessed its baffling manifestations among the contending groups of India and Burma. We know that it flows through the valley of the Danube, that there is scarcely a spot on the face of the earth today where the ghastly specter of racial and class hatred does not darken the future," said Dr. McLaurin.

Pointing to the tenth chapter of the Gospel of Matthew, Dr. McLaurin declared that the Disciples were Commandos for Christ, fearing nothing, save to find and follow the will of God, so today, the call is for men and women, boys and girls, who, like the gallant Commandos who stormed the coasts of Normandy, are willing to lose themselves for the sake of Christ in conquests of love over hatred.

"There are two distinct groups of people in this world with whom the Commandos of Christ must deal," said Dr. McLaurin. "And they are accurately described by Christ in these words, 'wolves' and 'hirelings.' There are strong and vicious men who represent organized evil—wolves who tear and kill. And there are so-called religious men, utterly unwilling to pay the price of true soldiers of the Gospel, who are willing to compromise with these evil men, even as the hirelings described by Jesus. Indifferent to His commands to call all men to repentance, they seek to be all things to all men, and play into the hands of the wolves who tear and destroy and kill.

FUTURE OF INDIA

"I have witnessed the transforming power of the Gospel of Jesus Christ in the lives of outcasts in India, and I know what I am talking about when I say that nothing save the grace of God in Jesus Christ can contend with the schemes of Satan. The Gospel means freedom from sin, and it is only when the blood of Jesus has cleansed eternal souls from the leprosy of sin that men and women can rise from the depths of social and economic and political slavery and bondage.

"I am everywhere asked what will be the future of the millions in India. My one answer must be that the future of India and of the entire Orient, even as of all peoples of the world, awaits the Commandos of Christ. David Lloyd George, at the close of the last war, said, 'It is either Christ, or chaos.' And that verdict stands true today.

"Britain will not only grant India constitutional freedom at the end of this war, but will cooperate with India in working out its own salvation, but before the people of India and Burma can govern themselves, they must possess within their hearts the peace and power which only the Gospel can bestow.

INDIA'S GREAT NEED

"I remind you that the last time Gandhi was jailed, that decision was reached by 11 Indian members of the council and one British member, the other three British members not being present. Men who are fettered by paganism cannot wisely rule themselves. 'Ye shall know the truth,' said Jesus, 'and the truth shall make you free.' The call of today is the call for Commandos of Christ. We need such Christians in Canada. You need more such Christians in the United States. It is the only way to a just and enduring world order," said Dr. McLaurin.

The convention opens at 10 a. m. today at the First Baptist church, with Dr. Frederick S. Porter, of Columbus, presiding.

DR. LOUIE D. NEWTON'S
Baptist Conventionalities

Dr. C. Roy Angell is a Virginian—a graduate of the University of Richmond and the University of Virginia. As it was said of John Wesley that "he had the learning of Oxford in his head and the love of Jesus in his heart," so may we say of Roy Angell that he has the culture of Virginia in his head and the love of Jesus in his heart. He has one of the largest pastorates in the south—Central Baptist church, Miami, Fla.—and he went from the large and growing First Baptist church, San Antonio, to Florida. Dr. Angell and Bishop Arthur J. Moore are intimate friends, having worked together in San Antonio when the bishop was at Travis Avenue.

There are many distinguishing characteristics of this man Angell. I mention two—his love of people, and his love of fishing. Check up on him the next time you are in Miami or San Antonio. The fact that he is president of the Rotary Club in Miami is but one of the evidences of his interest in folks and his ability to work for the good of the entire community. He is a splendid golfer, an expert fisherman, and, to my certain knowledge, one of the best chess and checker players I have run upon. He is known near and far for his intriguing illustrations, drawn from his personal contacts with human beings and the great outdoors. Check me on this point if you are fortunate enough to hear him this afternoon at 4 o'clock at the Georgia Baptist convention. The place is the First Baptist church.

Baptists like preaching—even at their conventions, which prompts me to remind you that the convention preacher this year is one of our honored and beloved Georgians, Dr. J. Ellis Sammons, pastor of the Vineville Baptist church, Macon. The sermon comes at 11:40 o'clock this morning. The text: Esther 4:14.

Dr. James W. Middleton, pastor or Atlanta's First Baptist church, is chairman of the committee on order of business for this year's convention. Working with Dr. Middleton is Dr. Montague Cook, pastor of the First Baptist church, LaGrange, and Dr. Eugene R. Eller, pastor of the Crawford Avenue Baptist church, Augusta. These gentlemen have done an excellent piece of work in streamlining the usual-three-day order of business into two days—a gesture of co-operation in the war effort, saving time away from home, and one night's demands upon the crowded hotels. Even so, it appears that every cause will have its time at bat, and there will be time for discussion of all questions calling for a convention vote.

Women share with the men in the work of the Georgia Baptist convention, holding membership on every board, I believe, with the exception of the trustees of Mercer University. There are four women on the convention's executive board, eight on the board of Bessie Tift College, 16 on the board of the Georgia Baptist Children's Home, and so on through the list of the several agencies. They are well represented among the messengers from the churches, and they have all the privileges accorded the men, both in discussion and in voting.

Likewise, the laymen are well represented on all the boards and committees of the convention. There are six laymen on the convention's executive board, 22 on the Mercer board, six on the Bessie Tift board, 11 on the Children's Home board, 18 on the Georgia Baptist hospital board, 5 on the Georgia Baptist Foundation board, and so on through the other agencies. The list of messengers, both from rural and urban churches, always reveals a goodly representation of laymen.

Home Doctors' Lives Shortened, Says Atlantan

Dr. Edgar G. Ballenger, of Atlanta, president-elect of the Southern Medical Association, expressed the belief at a meeting in St. Louis, that an average of two to three years has been cut from the normal life span of a high percentage of homefront doctors due to "war overwork," according to an Associated Press dispatch.

Dr. Ballenger.

Speaking at the opening of the association's 38th annual meeting, Dr. Ballenger declared, however, that the heavy demands made on the depleted ranks of doctors left at home in the early days of this war are being compensated for by "a new attitude of co-operation on the part of patients which is leading many of them to come to the doctors' offices for minor complaints."

Adding that "the patients are helping us to carry on by showing a willingness to wait without protest when there are long lines before them in waiting rooms," Dr. Ballenger said that the country has been lucky in that "no epidemics of the type that struck the country in 1918 have occurred. As a safeguard, people should do everything in their power to keep well—such as watching their diets, avoiding undue exposure and living lives of moderation."

Industrial Relations To Be Studied Here

Georgia's relationship to industry in the postwar world will be studied by state executives and public relations men, in co-operation with 28 Georgia Chambers of Commerce, at a conference tomorrow night and Thursday at the Biltmore hotel.

Sponsored by the Associated Industries of Georgia and the National Association of Manufacturers, the two-day conference will seek to work out a program dealing with industry's relationship with workers, education, agriculture, the church, the home and other phases of the state's life. The annual meeting of the Associated Industries of Georgia will be held at 3:30 p. m. Wednesday preceding the opening of the conference.

Normans Blame U. S. for Losses, Asserts Admiral

By STERLING SLAPPEY.

In Cherbourg and along the Normandy beaches where the first landings in the fortress of Europe were made last June, the French populace, the bonded citizenry which the invasion set free, are antagonistic, unfriendly and unappreciative of American military deliverance

This startling announcement was made in Atlanta by Vice Adm. R. R. Waesche, commandant of the United States Coast Guard, at a meeting of Atlanta Post, Society of American Military Engineers, yesterday.

Adm. Waesche declared the Normans hold American bombing and shelling, not the Germans, accountable for their loss of property. Before the continental invasion the Norman people were fat and well fed. The German army purchased their farm products. Since the invasion their property has been destroyed and their livelihood is gone.

In Brittany, however, the Americans are welcomed and well liked. Brest and other cities did not take the pounding or feel the devastation which smashed Cherbourg.

"American engineering ingenuity has contributed as much as any other single factor to the breakout at St. Lo and the sweep to the German border," Adm. Waesche declared.

Many of the diabolical and ingenious German traps and delaying obstacles have been overcome or thwarted purely by American ingenuity and nerve.

Adm. Waesche recently returned to his headquarters in Washington after a tour of the European theater of operations. His tour carried him to England, France and Italy.

4 Bridge Contracts To End Road Year

Contracts for construction of four bridges in south Georgia at a total cost of approximately $1,000,000 will be let this month, winding up the state's road repair and construction program for the year, Ryburn Clay, director of the Georgia highway department, announced yesterday.

Clay said two of the four bridges would be built in Jenkins county, one in Emmanuel county on the Midvale-Waynesboro road, and one across Little Hurricane creek on Route 1, between Alma and Waycross.

With these projects the state will have let all road repair and construction contracts authorized by the War Production Board for Georgia this year.

Lodge's 75th Year

Seventy-fifth anniversary celebration of the Adamsville Masonic Lodge will be held at the Masonic Temple, Gordon and Fairburn road, at 7:30 p. m. today. Dave L. Shannon, recently installed grand master of Georgia Masons, will be the principal speaker. Members of Battle Hill Lodge No. 526, will present a Masonic play, "Rose Upon the Altar."

A Good Year for Georgia Baptists

Atlanta is happy to be host to the 123rd annual session of the Georgia Baptist Convention which opens this morning at the First Baptist church.

From all over the state leaders in the faith have come to report a banner year in the denomination's great Christian endeavors.

The church itself is in a stronger position than ever before. The Sunday school department reports substantial progress. And the various institutions conducted by the faith are enjoying good health and prosperity.

Mercer University, for instance, has an increased enrollment of both theological students and art school undergraduates and reports excellent progress in the campaign for an additional million dollars for the institution's endowment fund. Bessie Tift and Shorter will report similar increases in students and endowment, as will the denomination's two junior colleges, Brewton Parker Institute and Norman Parker Junior College.

In addition, the Georgia Baptist Children's Home at Hapeville and the Georgia Baptist hospital, of this city, are in position to report a year of genuine service to mankind and the prospect of augmented benefits in the near future.

It has been, in short, a good year for Georgia Baptists.

Atlanta, glad to have them in our midst, congratulates them on the splendid progress which they have made since last they convened.

Dr. Wightman F. Melton

Georgia lost one of her most beloved citizens in the death of Dr. Wightman F. Melton, poet laureate of the state, teacher, author, poet, and veteran head of the English department at Emory University. He had been ill for many weeks, critically ill for the past two.

Dr. Melton founded the first school of journalism in Georgia. He was the author of a number of textbooks in English and American literature in use in schools throughout the south. Poetry was his real love and some of the gentleness and sweetness of his own life was best expressed in his poems.

In extending sympathy to the family, The Constitution feels a personal and deep sympathy for Griffin News publisher, Quimby Melton, only son of Dr. Melton, who in recent weeks has lost his son in action in France, a sister and now his father.

Rides for Service Men

A young Marine, until recently at the Naval Air Base near Atlanta, but now ready to leave for a battle-fron. assignment, came by our office.

"Most of the people have been decent and fine," he said, "but I dropped by to tell you an experience of yesterday afternoon. I was standing at a bus stop out on Peachtree street when a car pulled up for the stop light. It was near the curb and I heard the man beside the driver say, 'Let's pick up that serviceman.' The driver, who looked to be about 24, said, 'I don't pick up any servicemen.'

"I am going to a theater of war. Before I got in the Marines I had a civil service job. I am about that fellow's age. I just wanted you to write something about it, hoping he will see it and know I heard him. I hope he enjoys staying at home and not picking up servicemen. He needn't mind. They all have bus fare and when they leave for war they get to ride free. I hope he enjoys his 'B' card and living at home."

We hope so, too. This civilian, whoever he was, is the sort all of us would like to kick.

Light for Georgia Farms

Highly gratifying is the announcement that Georgia rural electrification associations plan a 25-million-dollar expansion program which will bring electricity to 89,500 additional farms in this state within three years after the war ends and materials become available.

Georgia's ambitious program is part of a national plan which contemplates installation of facilities which will serve a total of 3,655,000 farm families who now have no access to power lines.

The rural electrification program ranks as one of the greatest contributions of this or any other era to American farm life. The fact that it will be expanded to serve so many more Georgians in the immediate postwar period is a source of real satisfaction to all who realize the importance of progressive farming in our economic system.

THE PULSE OF THE PUBLIC

The Constitution welcomes letters from its readers. They must be signed, should not exceed 200 words.

Thanks Peg

Editor Constitution: Now that the election is over, I want to express my thanks for the aid you gave in the re-election of the "Champ." I am of the firm opinion that no one contributed more help than your correspondent, Westbrook Pegler. It appears that the more he wrote, the more the people believed in FDR. It was only natural after reading Pegler's letter of December 9, 1941.

'All Right'

Editor Constitution: Mr. Roosevelt has been elected for the fourth time. We are all right. Under his administration the sick were made whole, the hungry were fed, the naked were clothed, the homeless were given shelter, the barefoot were given shoes, the blind were made to see, the deaf to hear, the lame to walk. Loafers were put to work.

The poor were in the program and we thank him.

Un-American

Editor Constitution: I would like to give forth a hearty "amen" to Mr. Shackford's letter in this morning's Constitution. No true American citizen should forget the facts brought out in this campaign, and, too, it seems the Democrats kept asking us to remember when cotton was 5 cents a pound —they could have added eggs were 15 cents a dozen and Mr. and Mrs. Average Family could afford to eat them.

The puppets-on-a-string, who, with their borrowed prosperity, now have a week's groceries ahead for the first time in their lives will probably want to forget but in forgetting they will fail to remember that their children and grandchildren will have to pay for their forgetting. I sincerely hope that Mr. Pegler and the rest of the open-minded public will continue to dig deep into the facts —to give credit where credit is warranted and refuse to indorse further any un-American practice.

Pen Women

Editor Constitution: In behalf of the Atlanta branch of the National League of American Penwomen, I wish to thank you for making it possible for one of our poets to win the Frank Stanton Memorial award. We will long remember this lovely gesture.

I doubt if there is a member of this Atlanta branch who does not feel as I do about The Atlanta Constitution and would find a bleak morning coffee hour without it.

Mt. Olive Church

Editor Constitution: Please accept our most gracious and truly appreciative thanks to you and to your paper, The Atlanta Constitution, for the very fine favor you have rendered us, the Mt. Olive Baptist church, in carrying an article about the completed payment of our mortgage indebtedness which was submitted by Dr. Louie D. Newton. This article appeared in your paper Monday morning, November 6, 1944. We want you to know that we are extremely happy and truly grateful for the very fine service that you and your paper rendered us through the kind and considerate serviceable generosity of Dr. Newton.

Many of our people read your paper appreciably each day, for they know the work and worth of this household publication of this beautiful land of the south.

Once again our hearts prayerfully go out with devotion to God and thanks to you and your publication through our friend, Dr. Newton.

W. W. WEATHERSPOOL, Pastor.

For Roosevelt

Editor Constitution: A lot of folks thought that the Negro southern vote would go G. O. P. This writer deals with them every day, and their vote went just as expected, for Roosevelt.

The Georgia Negro knows which side his bread is buttered on, and votes accordingly. A certain Negro minister phoned the writer, morning after election, when there could be no possible doubt as to the outcome. He said, "Sir, I didn't dare to go to bed election night. I simply stayed up all night praying for our President's re-election." And his attitude was, I find, pretty much the prevalent attitude of the Negro people with whom I come in contact.

The Greatest Living Southerner

Suppose you were asked this question: "Who, in your opinion, is the greatest living southerner from the viewpoint of service, accomplishment, integrity and close adherence to Christian ideals?"

At the top of my list would go this name—"Josephus Daniels." I feel sure almost every informed southerner also would, on consideration, write that name first.

I have been thinking of him since the publication, a few days ago, of the third volume in his memoirs, this one being titled "The Wilson Era." Before it have appeared "Tarheel Editor" and "Editor in Politics."

I assume he must have planned about five of these books. If so, when added to his other published works he will have written well over 1,000,000 words. The fact that all the while he has been a vigorous editor of the Raleigh News and Observer, would run his total to well over 3,000,000 words. I believe the literary world still marvels at Dumas because that gentleman turned out something over 2,000,000.

What makes it all the more remarkable is that his greatest writing has been done in the past three crowded years. In his eighty-third year, he is at his desk every day for a full day, and faces each day with tolerance, wisdom, and a cheerful good nature which is a marvel to all who know him.

I recall a valued half-hour with him at Chicago during the recent Democratic convention. He was suffering from a bad ankle, yet he was sitting all morning on the platform committee, was attending luncheons, the caucuses of the North Carolina delegation, and was going out to official dinners each evening.

When war came he had but recently resigned as ambassador to Mexico. He had gone there under fire by the Mexicans. He left there after having done one of our finest, and most necessary jobs as an ambassador, with this tribute from the Mexicans, "The best loved and the most respected ambassador America has ever sent us."

He has some fine sons and one of them, Jonathan, is an accomplished writer and editor in his own name, but their father, when war came, took over the jobs two of his sons were doing and didn't even have to trot. Let me hasten to say the sons join me in this statement.

Legend We have a habit of taking for granted those who live and work in our midst. It is largely for this reason it is not generally realized what a tremendous figure and what a legendary figure Josephus Daniels is.

He was born in 1862. He was editor of a paper and a lawyer, admitted to the bar, at the age of 18. His life touches that of Grover Cleveland, the first great Democrat to smash the special privilege Republican grasp on the nation which had existed from the time of Grant's administration. He knew Cleveland well. In 1893 he was chief clerk of the Department of the Interior. All the while he was building a sound and influential newspaper.

He was secretary of the navy under Woodrow Wilson, and did a magnificent job. He has never run for office, resisting even many offers of office without opposition. He has held high office within the party organizations, was active in the Bryan and Wilson campaigns and is a national influence to this good day.

He was our ambasasdor to Mexico for eight years and it happened to be a critical period and a time when we were developing the good-neighbor policy with that nation and those south of it. No ambassador to any country has done a better job.

Wilson Era His books, especially this latest one, "The Wilson Era," should be in the library of every student of politics and of history.

It is a vital, crowded story. When Wilson took office China and Japan were on the agenda. We came close to war with Japan in those years. Revolution raged in Mexico. We had to land Marines at Vera Cruz to prevent the Germans from landing a shipload of supplies in Mexico. Even then the Germans were active there, trying to make that nation lean to them.

He had a part in assisting Wilson with the first good tariff law in half a century. The federal reserve act, the Federal Trade Commission, the Clayton anti-trust act. The book relates the struggle for neutrality and preparedness. The fight to protect the Navy's oil reserves, the battle to break the armor "trust." The appearance of Edison and a young fellow named Franklin Roosevelt—all these are in the book.

Faithful One of the tragedies of the south has been that so many of her leaders, after fine starts, have been seduced away from truth and principle and the best interests of the south. Too many of the south's liberals, in the true meaning of the word, have lived too long. In politics and in civilian fields, too many of our leaders have started well but drifted either into demagogic sidelines or quietly gone over to the other side.

But not Josephus Daniels! He stands today as firmly for the right as ever, perhaps more strongly. Many have been his temptations. He has scorned them all.

A great, practicing Christian, the strength and sweetness of his life shines like a beacon through the fogs of reactionary thought, intolerance and bigotry, an inspiration to the whole south and its people.

NATIONAL COMMENT:

Editorials on Germany's V-2

New York Herald Tribune Calmly and factually, Prime Minister Churchill has confirmed most of what rational deduction had been able to piece out of German claims for V-2. This "retaliation weapon" is indeed a great rocket which rises high into the stratosphere and descends faster than the speed of sound. No warning can be given of the weapon's approach, but "the scale of the attacks has not hitherto been significant," and the missiles have landed over a wide area, which suggests that they are almost impossible to aim.

Naturally, Mr. Churchill was primarily concerned with the military effectiveness of V-2, which does not yet appear to be very great. But even a world hardened to the fantastic development of scientific warfare cannot fail to be shocked by the implications of this blind projectile, hurtling out of space to spread its indiscriminate devastation, or by the spectacle of a blind nation lashing out wantonly with so truly hellish a device. Even though the Germans may be pressed back beyond the point where V-2 is effective against Britain, they will be able to expend their venom upon the lands they so recently held enslaved. They already announce that V-2 is being used against Paris and Antwerp, and while the accuracy of the weapon hardly appears to offer much danger of affecting the Allied military effort, more suffering will be broadcast among a population which has borne years of complicated terror. V-2 is a reality—that is something which is still hard to grasp. But what is even more incredible than V-2, after all of Germany's crimes, is the fact that Germans boast of having fathered it.

Washington Post The Nazis, of course, are doing all they can to play up V-2. They are boasting that the new weapon will be employed not only against England but also against America. As for that, there is no inherent reason why rocket bombs of sufficient magnitude could not be built for an attack on America. While this is a possibility, as Adm. King has pointed out, it is hardly a probability. Yet we have no reason to be complacent about the outlook. The very fact that the Germans are still using terror weapons suggests that they are not yet prepared to give up.

Birmingham News The present bombs, as spectacular as they may be, are crude things compared to what may be developed in the future. Weapons that can shoot across oceans with a fair degree of accuracy are not beyond the ability of men to produce. That much can be predicted with assurance.

In that fact there is all the more reason why men should use their intelligence to prevent wars. Unless their ability to produce destructive weapons is controlled, they will drive civilization to new dsasters.

Christian Science Monitor The effect of this bombing in Britain may account in some measure for the high price British military leaders were willing to pay in the attack on Walcheren Island outside Antwerp. If the buzz-bomb cannot win a softer peace for Germany, and in fact is only likely to intensify demands for rigorous postwar controls of that nation, it does nevertheless impose the necessity for an all-out effort at the first possible moment against the west wall.

If it also reminds Americans, and others who have escaped the impact of explosives on their own cities, that the war seems far from over to the Britisher digging his family, his friends or his possessions out of a heap of buzz-bomb rubble, it may serve a useful propaganda purpose for the Allies as well as the Nazis.

Be watchful, and strengthen the things which remain, that are ready to die.—Revelation 3:2.

Heraclitus once remarked that a man cannot cross the same river twice. His reasoning was that it is not the same river, that the water crossed the first time has already poured on toward the sea and other water from the hills has come to take its place. Likewise the man is different. He is wiser or more foolish, and certainly he is older. Life is change. Yet the central message of life is that there is that about it which abides. Faith, hope, love, beauty, truth, heroism—these values do not pass away. They are of the essence of the divine nature.

Force Not Enough

Every city, town and hamlet has some kind of organization to fight fire. If a fire is reported in time, and the first fighters reach it quickly, it is usually overcome before it has done great damage.

But once the fire starts, it invariably does some damage, and under certain conditions the damage is enormous despite the promptness and skill of the fire fighters.

It is therefore obvious that our great need is not a better way to overcome fires, but a way to keep fires from starting.

What is true of fire is true of war.

All people of sanity and good will are agreed that a way must be found to prevent another world war. Most of them favor a world organization for this purpose. But the planners seem to be dreaming of one thing and preparing for another. They talk of preventing war but make plans to suppress an aggressor who has started a war.

The three great powers are agreed that any league to preserve peace will be dominated by themselves, but their plans are delayed by disagreements concerning other matters.

Only Russia or England or America would dare to challenge the world.

Suppose that Russia should attack one of her neighbors. It would mean, beyond any question, that the Russians knew what the consequences would be and were ready for them. It would mean they were ready to challenge the world, and were already striking at key points with all their power.

Their right to veto council action would be meaningless. The powers of our representative could not affect the decision for or against war. For another world war would already be upon us, and the league to prevent war would have failed of its purpose. It might act quickly to overcome the aggressor, but it would be a league to win a war—not to prevent it.

Military force, however necessary, is not enough. It will take the moral force of world opinion to prevent war, and we shall fail again unless all nations work in unison to develop that force.

GEORGIA EDITORS SAY:

PROVIDING FOR HOME RULE

(Macon Telegraph)

The Telegraph has watched with sympathetic interest the work of the commission for revision of the state constitution. We realize that many of the things that have been suggested are impracticable. For instance, there are too many counties in Georgia, but any reduction in the number probably would be defeated by the people.

The Georgia League of Women Voters, however, insists that there should be some provision for a larger measure of home rule and with this we agree.

In the constitution drawn up under the auspices of the Institute of Public Affairs at Athens, there is a provision which reads as follows:

The organization, powers and duties of county government shall be defined by general law. Optional plans of county government may be provided to go into effect in any county when submitted to the qualified voters thereof and approved by a majority of those voting. No special or local law affecting county government shall be passed.

A somewhat similar provision applies to cities.

These provisions, it seems to us, cover the ground and should be adopted.

JACK TARVER

Where, Oh Where Has Der Fuehrer Gone?

Hitler's strange silence on the anniversary of the beer hall putsch has set off a flock of rumors that der Fuehrer is dead or sick or crazy.

Officially crazy, I mean. He's been recognized as a semi-pro maniac for more years than somewhat.

Hitler has not been heard on the Nazi radio since the reported attempt on his life, July 20. That is a record silence for a guy with as much ham in him as Adolf.

Another circumstance which lends credence to the rumor Hitler is dead is that the German armies have been giving a better account of themselves of late. If Adolf isn't dead, then they've at least rationed his intuition.

In der Fuehrer's unexplained absence, one of his little playmates, Hangman Heinrich Himmler, read a message which he said Hitler wrote. Most authorities are inclined to doubt it. It sounded too rational.

There is, of course, one other possibility. Adolf may not be dead or sick or crazier. The rat, and I use the word literally, may already have deserted the sinking ship.

GLADSTONE WILLIAMS

The Effect Of Hitler's V-2

WASHINGTON.—Hitler has now made good on his boast that he would employ new secret weapons against England even more powerful than the V-1 robot winged bomb which wrought such destruction on London before we overran their launching bases in France and the Low Countries.

Prime Minister Churchill has confirmed that the V-2 bombs, successor to the V-1, is now being used against England.

Most people thought Hitler was bluffing some months back when he promised to introduce new and more destructive secret weapons of the kind. What was difficult to understand about it was why he should make such a revelation in advance, if he really had anything.

Sound military tactics calls for keeping such matters secret until they are actually employed. In that way the element of surprise is kept, and the enemy is given no opportunity to prepare advance counter-measures.

It must be evident, therefore, that Hitler was in great need of providing something that would bolster up a sagging home-front morale. Otherwise, it is inconceivable that he would have openly put the British on notice of what was to come.
of its elongated shape.

Thus far little official information has been released on the V-2, which has been dubbed the "flying telephone pole," because

The V-1s, with which we are now entirely familiar, having captured many of their launching bases in France, were much smaller and had a much shorter range. Some of them are still being launched against England from airplanes flying over the North sea, but for the most part their effectivness has been destroyed by the capture of bases in France.

One of our American Army officers just returned from France brings back some rather amazing reports concerning the V-2. He says it has a trajectory of 316 miles when fired at a target 200 miles away, and is capable of covering this distance in five minutes, which is equal to the astounding speed of 3,912 miles an hour.

London reports have credited the rocket with a speed of at least 3,000 miles an hour.

The same Army officer stated that the rocket, fired at a target 200 miles away, goes upward in its trajectory for 58 miles high before starting its falling movement. Hence it would seem to be fired almost straight up in the air.

At such great speeds, of course, there is little of a defensive nature that can be undertaken against the rockets. Since they travel at a greater rate of speed than sound (approximately 700 miles an hour), it is impossible to hear them coming. The noise of the approaching rockets lags behind at a rate of better than 3,000 miles an hour.

But terrifying as all this appears, military men say the new rocket has been a flop because it cannot be aimed with any degree of accuracy. Its speed and trajectory is said to make accuracy impossible. The Germans are obviously using it solely for its effect on British morale.

This was not entirely true of the V-1 flying bombs. The statement is made by those in position to know that more damage was caused on London by these rockets than all the aerial blitzing of the early part of the war.

If word brought back by some of our officers is true, the invasion of France came in the very nick of time to save England from destruction. The Germans, it is said, had made the most elaborate preparations for launching the V-1's from the French coast. Many of the bases were already in operation.

But if we had delayed the date of the invasion much longer the whole success of the undertaking might have been seriously threatened. They might have been in position to wreak havoc with concentration points of our invasion forces.

We reached France in time to destroy the laupching bases before they could be put into general use.

Hitler has also threatened to produce flying rockets capable of use against American cities. Conceivably he might do this, if the war lasts long enough. Our own scientists are known to be working on developments along the same line, and it will be one of the sensations of the scientific world when, after the war, it is revealed how far they have gone.

But no one believes at the moment that his threat against the United States is anything more than an idle boast. We are not even greatly disturbed by the confirmation of his V-2. It is a problem to cope with, but its military effectiveness should not be great.

THOMAS L. STOKES

Dewey's Opportunity For Leadership

WASHINGTON.—From a practical political standpoint Gov. Dewey has a better opportunity for effective leadership of the Republican party than had any of the preceding candidates defeated by Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Whether he can offer really constructive leadership may depend partly upon whether he can erase unfavorable impressions left by some campaign utterances and by the use of some issues that rankled here and there. But ordinarily the people are lenient with extravagant talk in a political campaign. Both sides always indulge themselves.

The so-called "titular leadership" of Herbert Hoover, Alfred M. Landon and Wendell L. Willkie was dissipated quickly through various circumstances—Mr. Hoover's because of the tag of depression wich never would slip off, Mr. Landon's because of his poor showing with the voters, Mr. Willkie's because he was out ahead of his party and could not get along with the regular G. O. P. leadership.

Gov. Dewey ran by far the best race. His popular vote crept uncomfortably close, for the Democrats, to that of President Roosevelt. This must be taken into account, rather than the lopsided electoral vote, in reckoning his strength with his party and in assessing his influence as a national leader.

He supervised the putting together of the most effective organization the Republicans have had in a dozen years, and he exercises more influence with it than did his three predecessors after the election.

He took his party along with him, for the most part, on the big issue in foreign policy—creation of an effective international organization to keep the peace. Mr. Willkie pioneered for such an organization, broke the ground, helped to swing the Republican party toward it, but it did him no good politically because of his unpopularity with old-line leaders.

Likewise Gov. Dewey projected a progressive domestic program for his party.

Unlike the three others, too, Mr. Dewey has a public forum still—for two years at least—as governor of New York, which gives him continuing prestige. He has also his continuing contacts with Republican governors—24 hereafter instead of 26—with whom he built up a close relationship during the campaign.

Because of the war, the scramble for the 1948 Republican nomination perhaps will be longer delayed than usual, with an interim in which war and peace issues will predominate, so that Gov. Dewey will have a chance to exhibit his ledership in times of national stress.

No Republican candidate in recent years has emerged from an election with more personal contacts in state and local organizations than Mr. Dewey. He worked at this assidously. The late Mr. Willkie discovered his lack of such contacts too late when he began to plan his campaign for the 1944 nomination.

On every campaign trip, especially on his journey to the Pacific coast and back, Gov. Dewey devoted many hours to tlaking and listening to local leaders, not only political leaders but representatives of business, farm and labor groups.

This not only will increase his influence as a party and national leader, but also may pay dividends if he decides to seek renomination, which is what most defeated candidates do, though the Republican party in recent times has never accepted an also-ran. Some have surmised that Gov. Dewey, in his care to build up the party organization through personal contact, was looking forward to 1948 as well as to this year's elections. They believe he will try desperatelyt o hold on to the party organization.

After all, he is the only defeated Republican nominee for governor of New York to be renominated in our time.

WESTBROOK PEGLER

Suggests A Boycott

NEW YORK.—If the boycott had not received resounding indorsement from Felix Frankfurter, of the supreme court, the most influential philosopher of the New Deal, I would hesitate to offer the proposal which is the subject of today's essay.

Briefly, that proposal is that those Americans who oppose Mr. Roosevelt's Communist friends should shun products which are advertised on the air by performers who are either Communists or unmistakable fellow travelers and avoid movies and plays produced by such people or which employ them as actors or musicians. In plainer words, the boycott.

This will be denounced as Hitlerism at its worst but I will now undertake to prove that, if so, it is Hitlerism of the purest Rooseveltian kind by citing from some of Frankfurter's opinions and other references.

How do you decide whether a ham of the air, the screen or the stage is a Communist?

Frankfurter invites us to make arbitrary decisions and to boycott as a Communist anyone whom we, individually, suspect of being a Communist. Mrs. Roosevelt expressed the same principle by her conduct in a notable case although she sometimes protests against the classification of "liberals" as Communists merely because they associate and co-operate with Communists.

Frankfurter declared himself specifically in the so-called cafeteria case in which a union of restaurant workers picketed a place in New York whose owners were law abiding citizens and taxpayers and did all the work themselves. The union tried to compel the owners to hire some of its members to do their work, in which case, they would have been forced to stand idle and go broke. There was no labor dispute and so there could be no strike and the original issue was a racket.

To enforce their demands, the unioneers sent pickets, never employed in the cafeteria, to tell the prospective patrons that by eating there they were helping the cause of Fascism. In other words, the pickets called the owners Fascists, and Frankfurter found absolutely nothing to suggest that they were.

"To use loose language or undefined slogans that are part of the conventional give and take in our economic and political controversies, like 'unfair' or 'Fascist' is not to falsify facts," Frankfurter wrote. This means that if you tell a malicious lie about a fellow-citizen you are telling the truth. It follows, also, that if you were to picket the supreme court in Washington with placards charging that Frankfurter took a bribe of $100,000 for shading that opinion in favor of the union, knowing that he had not, that would not be falsification of the facts.

In the case of the Roosevelt Communists and fellow-travelers, however, there is evidence which gives positive ground for reasonable suspicion, which was not the case with the owners of the cafeteria. There was not the slightest ground for calling them Fascists but if you find men and women in close political association with Communists you do have reason to suspect them.

So, according to Frankfurter, it is reasonable and just to decide that a certain radio pundit, let us say, is a Communist and to boycott the product of the company which employs him as an entertainer to advertise its goods.

And, still according to Frankfurter, it is only a "part of the conventional give and take" to get out circulars listing the hundreds of Broadway and Hollywood actors, crooners, producers and writers who are either avowed Communists or willful associates of Communists, and organize against them an economic boycott embracing all those Americans who are anti-Communist.

Frankfurter had indorsed malicious published lies against innocent persons in an earlier decision in the so-called carpenters' case. In that case a union violated its signed agreement with an employer and then denounced him as being "unfair" to labor, which Frankfurter admitted he was not, and organized a national boycott of his product, which was beer. Frankfurter held that, because this was "a familiar practice" and for other reasons couched in that mysterious obscurity which is his manner, the union was within the law. Mere usage, the mere fact that unions had habitually, over many years, indulged in false accusations to the detriment of innocent victims, justified such vicious conduct.

"I wouldn't beat my gums about her icky jive talk, Madam—your little pigeon is strictly a slick chick!"

Lords of the Portable Roost

THOMASTON.—Every year just about this time the citizens of Thomaston and Griffin receive order cards from Mr. Lester McCrary, of Molena, Ga., asking the patron to state what size turkey he wants, preference for bird dressed or on foot, and the date on which he would like it to be delivered.

If Gertrude Stein had ever said a turkey is a turkey, she would have been mistaken, for there are ordinary turkeys, and Mr. McCrary's turkeys. Before he began raising them, households in middle Georgia always experienced a crisis on the Friday following Thanksgiving Day when there was no more white meat, and spoiled children of all ages refused to eat the dark. That problem has now been settled by Mr. McCrary's broad-breasted bronze variety, and not until Saturday does anyone have to eat dark meat.

When we drove up to his farm on a brilliant fall morning, approximately a thousand excited birds protested our approach. They must have sensed Thanksgiving in the air and their impending doom, for they calmored loudly and defiantly. Behind their wire fence they glowered at the invaders, pompous as bank presidents and equally sought after.

But the owner was not to be seen and when a neighbor suggested that the ringing of the farm bell would bring him, we added that noise to the uproar of the birds, and soon a large percentage of Pike county was assembled.

Mrs. McCrary who teaches mathematics in Molena in addition to doing all her housework and keeping books for her husband, came out to answer questions until McCrary arrived and he came up shortly from one of the fields where grain is raised for the turkeys.

His father allowed that the writer was looking young for her age, but before that subject was pursued too far, we got down to business. "Is it true, Mr. McCrary, that you sold 4,000 pounds to the government for soldiers overseas?"

"The sale was not made directly to the government, but I understood that that was the destination of 204 of my biggest toms. They weighed 4,600 pounds, to be exact, and I'll show you some like them in a few minutes."

"How many birds do you have left? There must be a thousand out there still—"

"I had 980 at the beginning of the season but I've already sold others besides the ones for the Army. Every year the Baptist church at Manchester sends 300 or 400 pounds to the Orphans' Home at Hapeville, and I've just delivered some for a big meeting in Thomaston."

"Oh, yes, the executive board meeting of the D. A. R. Now tell me how you begin, do you order the baby turkeys, or hatch the eggs here?"

Mr. McCrary walked over to the "brooders." "Up until five years ago, all the hatching was done right here but now I order the chicks from a farm at Lorraine, near Macon, and from the Zealand Hatchery at Zealand, Mich. I started out in 1932 with three hens and one tom."

"What percentage loss do you have?"

"Only about 6 per cent on average. Now we keep them in these protected pens until they are eight weeks old, using a 'turkey starter mash' for their feed, then they are carried to the range. At 10 weeks we feed them 'Growing Chow with Grain.'"

"How was that again?"

"'Growing Chow With Grain.' They live on grain grown on the farm until 30 days before marketing time when they are put on 'fattening chow' and grain."

"But aren't your feed bills enormous? How do you make a profit?"

Mr. McCrary laughed. "The only way you can make a profit is by raising most of your feed, I raise 60 per cent of mine. And I've some cotton, too, you'll notice—four bales from 4 8-10 acres isn't bad, and the turkeys ranging through it kept all the weeds and grass out. They have a pretty soft life, though; do you see the portable roosts out there? And the feed houses move along on skids, too."

"No wonder they look so arrogant. Does anybody ever swipe any, or do customers fail to pay?"

"Out of the 6,000 birds I have delivered, only one was not paid for. And there has never been but one theft; once a hen and the eggs on wich she was sitting were stolen. I inquired around the neighborhood until I located the hen at a bootlegger's. But he hadn't stolen her, he was a good, honest bootlegger who'd taken her in exchange for three quarts of liquor that he'd let the thief have. When he found it was my turkey, he gave her back to me."

"An amazing bootlegger!"

"Oh, some bootleggers are as honest as preachers. Incidentally, I never mail an order card to a preacher; it's a waste of time and money. Somebody always gives the preachers their turkeys."

"How long does your season last?"

"From frost to frost, I always say. Of course, we sell more at Christmas, actually, than we do at Thanksgiving, and if I have to carry over a hundred into January, I shan't mind. You wanted to see the big Toms like I sold for the soldiers, look at those fellows there—35 pounds apiece, every one of 'em.'"

With their wings and tails spread out, and their exhaust pipes thumping, they were indeed impressive. I recalled Irvin S. Cobb's dictum, "A man who is born in Boston and educated at Harvard is like an egg that has been laid twice, both times successfully."

Those turkeys looked as though they were Boston-born and Harvard-educated.

There will be no lack of living quarters for foxes in the peace ahead. And we assume that house-hunting eagles already have looked over Berchtesgaden.

Another alarm subsides. There is plenty of coffee in the country to keep us awake and worrying over a possible coffee shortage.

LOUIS BROMFIELD

Farm Co-operatives Were a Defensive Measure

Recently there has been organized a concerted drive to bring about legislation which would impose on co-operatives the same taxes as those imposed upon corporations. I don't propose to go into the rights or wrongs of the proposal but to point out that the very interests now clamoring for the taxation of co-operatives are largely the forces which brought about their existence. There has been and will be before the battle is over a good deal of propaganda put out to discredit the co-operative and to label it as socialistic enterprise. It is no such thing. It is one of the finest manifestations of democracy, representing the spontaneous impulse of men in a community or even in a state or a nation to solve their own economic problems, increase their savings and protect themselves against gouging and grossly swollen profits.

In the case of the farm co-operatives, all of them came into being as a measure of self-protection. Being intensely individualistic and on the whole small operators, farmers have long been victims of the middleman, the fertilizer racket, the mixed-feed racket and the farm-machinery racket which, in the past at least, charged him high prices for everything he bought without paying much attention to quality. The rackets were pushed by the kind of high-pressure advertising and propaganda which even found its way into the classrooms of agricultural colleges. The middleman charged high prices for what he sold the farmer and paid the lowest price possible for what he bought from him. Meat packers manipulated markets and still do as far as possible, to buy at the season when the farmer was hard pressed for money or they bought heavily in an abundant market and laid off when prices benefitted the farmer. When the books of an agricultural machinery factory taken over recently by a state farm co-operative were examined, it was found that the company was selling a cornpicker which cost $200 to manufacture to the farmers who had to have it for $700. And it wasn't a very good cornpicker either.

What I am trying to say is that the elements mentioned above asked for the co-operative and they got it and they have not heard the last of it. Big farmer's co-operatives are spreading and expanding and growing more rapidly than many successful corporations. They are expanding into the banking and insurance fields with loans and servicing offered at cheaper rates than private corporations have offered. Rural and small town banks have been going out of existence rapidly, and one of the reasons is that all too often they offered no real service whatever and the banker himself was no more than the villian he was portrayed in the old-time melodramas.

The co-operatives have provided the farmer with the soundest of all bases for organization and as the co-operatives have grown, so has the political and economic influence of the farmer. Make no mistake about the genuine co-operative. It is a grass roots' manifestation of democracy, and we shall have more of it, not only among farmers but among industrial workers and white-collar workers. It is true that there are so-called co-operatives in operation which are not real co-operatives at all but privately owned corporations, and these should certainly not enjoy the exemptions from taxation which the true co-operative receives. It is a simple enough matter to determine the quality of their genuineness.

I think it reasonable to say that the true co-operative has provided more genuine benefits for the farmer than all the vast and complicated program of government aid. And it leaves the farmers standing on their own feet, free of the strings and essential humiliation which goes with being a subsidized citizen.

The middleman and his associates who exploited the farmer asked for the co-operative just as the elder J. P. Morgan, Henry Frick, Jay Gould, E. H. Harriman and their associates asked for the New Deal.

HARRIETTE BURSON

Tribulations of a Lady Editor

(Editor's Note: Harriette Burson is the editor of the Camilla Enterprise.)

CAMILLA—Thousands of newspaper executives all over the country were, literally, singing "I Want a Paper Doll (lady editor)" long before Johnny Black wrote the song which is still pretty much of a hit tune.

Paper Dollies were the butt end of every newspaper room gag and joke before S. S. (Selective Service) created the opportunity for women to really crash the field of journalism.

A big city newspaper which might have had one girl to nine men desk editors before the war, now has one man to nine girls. The New York Times has girl sports writers, the Washington Post has girls covering the police court, the Baltimore Sun has four girls on the copy desk, and Alice Estill, a girl reporter on the Wall Street Journal, has to sign her stories A. K. Estill to disguise her sex.

And right here in Georgia, things are no different from those distant places we mentioned above. The Atlanta papers have women journalists replacing their men employes who have gone to war. Rural journalism is swamped with females. For instance the P. D.'s editing such papers as the Covington News, Conyers News, Wiregrass Farmer, Perry Home Journal, Jones County News, Fort Valley Leader-Tribune, the Baker County News, the Camilla Enterprise, Pike County Journal, Millen News, Dawson County News, Wrightsville Headlight, and a few others I can't recall offhand.

Now I do not want to enter into any discussion of female versus male journalism. And I don't want to pat the female journalists on the back for the splendid job some of them are doing, I would only be accused of being prejudiced since I am one of those females that earns her bread and butter and a new fur coat every five years by writing.

I do want to talk about the trials and tribulations of lady editors as compared with those of the opposite sex.

For instance, that disappointed feeling I have when I find the chamber of commerce has scheduled a most important meeting on the night that I had promised to go stepping out with the crowd at the night spot just opened up, the feeling of uselessness I have while waiting 30 good whole minutes to get the story about the local football team, after all I can' go barging into the dressing room where the coaches and players are getting scrubbed up from an afternoon's stiff practice session, the helpless feeling I have going in the jail house to interview some desperado that has just been nabbed by the local sheriff, said desperado and thief has robbed about half the stores in town, or maybe it was tires he stole, and I must have a story for the paper, the story being obtained only after visiting the jail with much fear and trembling.

And then all other lady editors will surely agree with me when I say another trial and tribulation that my clan has to put up with is the way the men sitting on cracker barrels around the stove in the little store stop their very interesting and newsy conversation when you walk up. They don't want to invite a P. D. to sit on a cracker barrel—she must have a chair—and by the time the chair is obtained, put in place around the stove, the conversation drifts off to something that doesn't amount to a hill of beans and you spend an hour sitting and talking and hoping they will go back to that conversation which might amount to a good news story.

And then there are the flat tires on a little country road 15 miles from town and someone to fix it for you, the speeches you are expected to make because it was always the custom of the organization to have the editor say a few words, and finally the smirking queries of a few, and their number is really few, thank goodness, who peer in your eyes and say, "Lady editor, huh?"

The verbs, the nouns and adjectives and other parts of speech
Are what the English teachers daily do their best to teach,
And little children struggle through the grammar's mystic maze
To seek the clause that modifies or find the perfect phrase;
That, when they reach their useful days of man and womanhood,
They'll speak in simple language that is easiest understood.
But when school days are over and the hopeful little souls
Go forth to battle with the world, to play their adult roles,
'Tis then they learn a lot of things not written in the book,
That language often is employed to get them on the hook
And many men are specialists at juggling words about.
And draw their contracts with a hole that lets them wiggle out.
We buy mail-order policies, which promise sudden wealth
In case we meet an accident or suffer failing health,
And some of them are written so they never pay the goon
Unless he's bitten by an auk or falls from a balloon . . .
And, one would think, the brilliant men who formulate the laws
Would write them in the clearest way, and free of legal flaws,
But laws contain so many "ifs" . . . "whereases" . . . "ands" . . .
and "buts"
No wonder that the booby-hatch is loaded down with nuts,
While many cells should be resrved for linguistic sharks
Who drive the public crazy with ambiguous remarks.

France Given Full Part In Postwar Problems

PARIS, Nov. 13.—(AP)—Agreements for the demilitarization of the Saar—with France in control of the mines as was done after the last world war—full participation by France in the postwar development of Europe, and the speedy rearmament of the French army, were reached during the weekend conferences between Prime Minister Churchill and Gen. De Gaulle, it was reliably reported tonight.

ANGLO-FRENCH ACCORD

Churchill, DeGaulleSee Vosges Front

WITH THE FRENCH FIRST ARMY IN THE VOCGES, Nov. 13. (UP)—Prime Minister Winston Churchill and Gen. Charles De Gaulle visited this wintry sector of the front today, driving through a heavy snowfall and thick fog to a command post only 12 miles from the firing lines.

Churchill was briefed on the military situation, then he met all command generals of the First Army and had lunch. Later in the afternoon he inspected with De Gaulle a review of tanks and infantry at the famed French training camp, Valdahon, 15 miles east of Besancon.

In addition to giving France a seat on the European advisory commission, Churchill and De Gaulle were reported agreed that a strong French fighting force should be equipped as quickly as possible and that the French should participate in the military occupation of Germany along with the British, Russians and Americans.

The exact area to be assigned France in the Reich was reported left to the European commission to decide. In the first deliberations of this question the commission assigned eastern Germany to Russia; the southern area to the United States and northwestern Germany to England.

In connection with the occupation of the Reich, French officials were said to have urged speedy rearmament of the republic's troops because they believed "that an army of occupation cannot be raised at the last moment and it must have shown its moral and technical superiority on the field of battle" before attempting to occupy a defeated nation.

It was generally believed that as soon as equipment was available the De Gaulle government would issue new calls for military service.

With a veteran victorious army at her disposal, France would be in a position to guarantee her own security and help in maintaining peace in western Europe.

Churchill and De Gaulle were reported to have shelved such specific problems as the Italian Levant question and Spain to concentrate on general principles for common action.

Joint Rites For Dr. Melton And Daughter

Poet Laureate, 77, Dies at Emory Where He Served Many Years

Dr. Wightman F. Melton, 77, poet laureate of Georgia and for 18 years head of the department of English at Emory University, died yesterday at the Emory University hospital after an illness of several weeks.

Dr. Melton's daughter, Mrs. Emily McNelley, died Saturday and her funeral services were to have been held yesterday. However, on account of Dr. Melton's death, those plans were cancelled.

Joint funeral services will be held at 3:30 p. m. tomorrow at Emory Theological Seminary chapel, with Dr. Joseph Smith, pastor of Glenn Memorial Methodist church, which was Dr. Melton's church; Dr. Franklin N. Parker, dean-emeritus of the Emory School of Theology; Dr. Nathaniel G. Long, pastor of the Peachtree Road Methodist church, and Dr. Wallace Rogers, district superintendent of the West Atlanta distric of the Methodist Conference, officiating.

LOST GRANDSON

Pallbearers will include members of the Burns Club of Atlanta, the Writers' Club of Atlanta and Emory professors from Old Oxford.

Burial will be in Decatur cemetery. Brandon-Bond-Condon are in charge of arrangements.

Three weeks ago Lt. F. D. Melton, a grandson of Dr. Melton, was killed in action in Germany. On account of Dr. Melton's condition, this news was withheld from him. Dr. Melton made his home with his daughter, Mrs. McNelley, at 1205 Emory drive, N. E.

Dr. Melton became poet laureate of Georgia upon the death of Ernest Neal and was author of many volumes of verse. He also published several textbooks on English and, in addition, was the author of a number of volumes of short stories. Later in his life, he wrote editorials for the old Atlanta Georgian.

BORN IN TENNESSEE

Dr. Melton was born at Ripley, Tenn., on September 26, 1867, the son of the Rev. Isaac Quimby and Fannie Louise (Ellis) Melton.

With his graduation from the Peabody College for Teachers at Nashville in 1889, Dr. Melton began a long and distinguished career in the field of education and still later in journalism. In that same year, he joined the faculty of Blount College, Blountsville, Ala.

Three years later, in 1892, he became president of the Florida Conference College, at Leesburg, Fla. He held this place for three years.

In 1895, Dr. Melton became vice president of the Nashville, Tenn., College for Young Ladies; and in 1897 president of the Tuscaloosa, Ala., Female College, where he remained until 1903. From 1903 until 1906, he was a student at Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore.

PROFESSOR OF ENGLISH

Resuming his teaching in 1906, Dr. Melton became head of the department of English at the Baltimore City College, remaining in this position until 1908. In the latter year he became professor of English Language and Literature at Emory University and held that position until 1924. From 1931 until 1935 he was extension professor of English at Oglethorpe University and from 1936 until 1939 he was connected with the division of information and publications of the State Department of Education.

In 1889, Dr. Melton was married to Oliver Keller and they had three children — Oliver Quimby Melton, publisher and editor of the Griffin, Ga., Daily News; Mrs. Emily McNelley, and Keller Fletcher Melton.

Since 1924, Dr. Melton has been a regular contributor to his son's newspaper. He had the distinction of inaugurating the first class in journalism in any college or university in Georgia.

CIVIC WORK, WRITINGS

Aside from his educational and journalistic activities, Dr. Melton took an interest in political and civic work. He was mayor of Oxford, Ga., from 1912 to 1918, and during the first World War served with the American Red Cross at Fort McPherson, Ga., and at Camp Jesup, Ga.

Dr. Melton was a member of poetry societies in this country and in England. He was once president of the Atlanta Writers' Club and was long a director of the Burns Club of Atlanta. He was a Kappa Alpha, a Mason, a Democrat and a member of the Methodist Episcopal church.

He was the author of the following books and pamphlets: The Preacher's Son (1894); The Rhetoric of John Donne's Verse (1903); Chimes of Oglethorpe (1933). He was also editor of the following volumes: Ruskin's Crown of Wild Olive and Queen of the Air (1908); Lanier Memorial Poems of Trees (1932-1940); Versecraft (1931-1933) Bozart and Contemporary Verse (1933-1935).

In addition to his wife and his son, Maj. Quimby Melton, Dr. Melton is survived by three grandchildren: Lt. Oliver Q. Melton Jr., in New Guinea; Cpl. Keller F. Melton Jr., in Wyoming, and Miss Emily Keller McNelley, of Atlanta.

'Ward' Appeal Denied by Court

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—(AP)—The supreme court declined again today to interfere with a lower court decision that courts can neither review nor enforce War Labor Board orders.

The tribunal turned down an appeal of Montgomery Ward and Company from a ruling by the District of Columbia court of appeals that WLB actions are administrative and "at most" simply advisory to the President.

The mail order firm contended the WLB exceeded its statutory powers in issuing orders involving union maintenance, dues checkoff and grievance machinery at four Ward stores in Detroit, and one each in Jamaica, N. Y., and Denver.

'Bug' Bond Policy Told By Grimes

The remedy to the "bug" racket is not through an arbitrary use of bond requirements, Sheriff T. Ralph Grimes has replied to a statement made by Solicitor General-elect E. E. Andrews and Solicitor Lindley W. Camp.

Camp and Andrews had written the sheriff that it was agreed before the September-October grand jury that no appearance bonds should be accepted from the three professional bondsmen unless each bond is solvent. Judge Jesse Wood, of the criminal court of Fulton county, had ordered that the sheriff not accept bonds in lottery cases unless the bonds are approved by Camp.

"I will not approve any bond unless I think it is good, but the sheriff should not be asked to keep men in jail before trial through an arbitrary use of bond requirements," Grimes said. "It is certainly not fair to men who have not been tried and convicted."

SHERIFF TIGHTENS DOWN

"When the current 'bug crusade' was undertaken, the sheriff tightened down on the bondsmen and has required them to submit appraisal of their property by competent real estate authorities and has not allowed them to sign bond in excessive amounts," the sheriff's statement continued.

"The September-October grand jury was fully informed of the plans with respect to appearance bonds and approved the principle under which the sheriff is now operating," he added.

Andrews pointed out that the grand jury had disapproved financial statements made by the bondsmen.

Grimes said that County Attorney Harold Sheats had ruled the bondsmen should be allowed to make bonds three times the amount of the surety property owned by bondsmen, believing it to be doubtful that all outstanding bonds would be defaulted at one time.

However, both Camp and Andrews contend that a general exodus of the bondsmen is not only possible but probable.

PROFESSIONAL BONDSMAN

They pointed to the case of Fred Stokes, a professional bondsman who closed his business in Atlanta several years ago. Stokes, the solicitors report, left approximately $25,000 bonds outstanding, and the county received only $3,600 when his surety property was sold.

Grimes further said that the "remedy to the 'bug racket' does not lie in arbitrarily refusing bond to the 'little men,' but in prompt trial of all accused and sure punishment of everyone convicted."

"Most of the accused are 'little men'," he continued. "In some cases they are never convicted. Yet we are being asked to keep them in jail by refusal to approve a bond. The population of the jail has gone up 100 per cent on the strength of this program."

"If the sheriff knows which are the 'little' or the 'big' men in the lottery racket, I invite him to appear before the grand jury and let us know," Andrews replied.

Grimes said that he had informed the three professional bondsmen that he would refuse to accept appearance bonds in lottery cases while the racket still flourishes.

Meeting Planned By Atlanta D.A.R. For Wednesday

Col. Blake R. Van Leer, president of Georgia Tech, will speak at the meeting of the Atlanta Chapter D. A. R., to be held Wednesday at 2:30 o'clock, at Craigie House.

"What Young People May Expect of the Future" is the subject of Col. Van Leer's talk. He will be introduced by Mrs. William A. Bugg, program chairman for the junior committee.

Mrs. Harry C. Malone, regent, will introduce Mrs. Robert Caldwell, chairman of the committee for junior membership, who will be in charge of the program, assisted by her officers.

Mrs. Robert Schuessler will report on the Red Cross and war work done by members, and Mrs. James Crouse will read letters of thanks for boxes of clothing sent to D. A. R. schools in the south. Mrs. Knox Fitzpatrick will tell of placing manuals for citizenship where they are available to persons desiring to become naturalized. Mrs. Hinton Blackshear will give plans for the C. A. R. Mrs. Jack Patterson will report on the buddy bags sent to men in the armed forces. Mrs. George Connell will report on membership and Mrs. William A. Bugg will present the project for raising money.

The program will be concluded by songs given by Mrs. Jule Felton. Mesdames Jack Patterson, C. L. Whittle, W. Fred Conrade, H. M. Thompson, John Longino and John Montgomery will serve tea.

Miss Helen Vogt Is Honor Guest

Miss Helen Vogt, eminent New York fashion authority, will be central figure at the luncheon to be given today in Rich's Magnolia room by Mrs. Willsrd Patterson, director of public relations for Rich's, Inc. Miss Vogt is in the city to present the original costumes used in the filming of "Frenchman's Creek," being shown currently at the Fox theater. The costumes will be modeled at the luncheon hour in the Magnolia room, with Miss Vogt giving the commentation. "Frenchman's Creek" is a 17th century story and the costumes used in the film are authentic reproductions of that period.

Invited to meet Miss Vogt at luncheon are men and women of the press, including fashion editors, motion picture editors and book editors. A special guest will be another fashion authority, Miss Ruth Lupton Mills, of New York. Miss Mills is a cousin of Mrs. Julius Y. Talmadge, of Athens, prominent Georgia clubwoman, who has been invited to meet her here.

Mrs. Patterson also entertained at a small tea yesterday at Rich's, inviting a group of Atlanta friends to meet Miss Vogt.

ON THE AIR

By PAUL JONES

Debonair Adolphe Menjou and lovely Ann Rutherford, both of the screen, and Torch Singer Kay Armen will reveal their secret ambitions during Milton Berle's comedy show, Let Yourself Go, when it is heard over the Blue and WAGA at 9:30 p. m.—WAGA.

The suave Menjou, who has gained renown both in silents and talkies as a dramatic and comedy actor, has a frustrated inhibition which will be surprising to his legion of movie followers.

From time to time guest stars are given an opportunity to milk a cow, walk a tight rope or sing an operatic area, or whatever happens to be their hidden desire on the Berle fun session. The program is completely unrehearsed and is one of the most enjoyable shows offered Tuesday night.

James M. Cain's unusual story of a building contractor and his singing, social climbing wife, "Career in C Major," will be enacted during the This Is My Best program to be heard at 8:30 p. m. —WGST. Allan Jones and Verree Teasdale will play the principal roles.

James Melton, Georgia's gift to the concert stage, will compete for singing honors with Gracie Allen and George Burns during the comedy duo's comedy program to be heard at 8 p. m.—WGST. I hope we're not giving away any secrets, but George and James will duet in "Ain's Misbehavin'."

Martha Scott, lovely star of the cinema, and Myron McCormick, both currently starred in the Broadway version of Rose Franken's "Soldier's Wife," will co-star in an adaptation of that play during the This Is My Best program at 7:30 p. m.—WGST.

This cancels the previously scheduled "Heart of the Waltz," an original drama on the life of Johann Strauss.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

VINEGAR DELUSION

Friend declares she was once too fat but began drinking vinegar and lost weight. She now has a lovely figure. Is vinegar slenderizing? Is any food especially slimming? (Dolores H.)

Answer—Neither vinegar nor any food is slenderizing. That is a silly notion. If you are 18 or over, send stamped envelope bearing your address, ask for pamphlet "How to Lose Weight." Do not send a clipping.

THE IN-LAWS

Has a mother-in-law the right to pick up her grandson (aged seven months) any time she pleases? She argues that a sick baby belongs in his mother's arms, and because I do not believe in disturbing the baby. (Mrs. M. W.)

Answer—Neither the mother-in-law nor the grandma has any rights at all, if the baby's mother is on the job and sane, sober and intelligent. Send 10 cents and stamped self-addressed envelope for The Brady Baby Book. Maybe it will pacify the household and give the baby a break too.

MARTHA SCOTT, star of "Soldier's Wife" on Broadway, and famous SCREEN STAR, plays the title role in the thrilling serial, "Career of Alice Blair." JOSEPH COTTEN, star of screen and radio, is her leading man. Follow the exciting, romantic events in

The football season brings out the prettiest of warm woolens, and if you looked as pretty as the model in this suit and topper of turquoise stripe on black you couldn't grieve too much about what team won.

The ensemble is a Ted Stein design; the material a good black woolen, striped with both wide and narrow stripe of turquoise. The skirt has one inverted pleat in front; the jacket closes with four covered buttons. Smart, three-quarter-length, boxy and well-tailored is the topper. Suit and top coat each are $69.98.

DOROTHY MANNERS Reports:

Sonja Henie Ready For Her New Picture

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 13.—(INS)—Sonja Henie remains with Bill Goetz's international company on a new deal. In addition to a hike financially (in Sonja's case this always means a bigger percentage of the take), her second opus, "The Countess of Monte Cristo," will be filmed in technicolor and will be even bigger, better and frothier than her debut with the company in "It's a Pleasure."

First, Sonja goes on another one of her highly profitable ice tours, which begins November 15 in Indianapolis and winds up at Madison Square Garden in February. Later Sonja will return to Hollywood for the "Countess," a modern comedy with a Continental background written by Frank Tarloff.

Harold Lloyd will star in a comedy for Preston Sturges. Sturges deserves a vote of thanks for getting Harold back on the screen, particularly since he will be seen as his old bespectacled self—the nervous, self-conscious young man who was the idol of the silent screen fans. While the bouquets are being passed, Harold is equally lucky in getting Sturges to guide him. There is no better director of normal, frustrated comedy as it happens to everyday folks.

His tour with Eva Le Gallienne winding up January 5, Joseph Schildkraut returns to Hollywood to star in Republic's "The Amazing Mr. M." This is the story Schildkraut has had his heart set on for a long time. Frances Hyland wrote the original, which deals with a family of ordinary people who take in a ham actor to live with them. The thespian winds up practically changing everyone's personality, a sort of "actor who came to dinner" idea. It was this particular role that brought Schildkraut around to signing his long-term contract with Republic.

Plenty of headaches getting Ann Sheridan's next lined up at Warners. The weather isn't right for "Calamity Jane" and "Night Shift" isn't ready to roll. So "Danger Signal," the Phyllis Bottome novel, may get preference. That also depends on getting the script in shape. Craig Rice, who wrote "Home, Sweet Homicide," has been set to work repolishing the screen play to fit Annie's measurements.

CHATTER IN HOLLYWOOD: Deanna Durbin and Bob Landry aren't seeing each other any more, although he is still in town at this writing. The girl in New York, reported to be his fiancee, is not a debutante (as reported elsewhere(but is Geraldine Lux, a research writer for the sam publications hiring Landry.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By ALICE DENTON JENNINGS

March 21-April 19 (ARIES)—Watch your step today as the aspects incline to high nervous tension, which may bring in hasty and impulsive decisions. The best aspects of the day operate during the afternoon.

April 20-May 20 (TAURUS)—You are apt to encounter unusual events during the entire day and new beginnings will incline to take unusual turns or meet upsets. You may have to make a special effort to preserve harmony around you.

May 21-June 20 (GEMINI)—Previous to 8:30 a. m. you are apt to feel unusually ambitious and energetic, which will aid you in work that calls for immediate application. Between 2:20 p. m. and 4:11 p. m. social duties, domestic affairs and existing ties are apt to prove troublesome.

June 21-July 22 (CANCER)—The morning hours until 11:32 a. m. favor personal matters and regular business pursuits. Between 11:32 a. m. and 5:08 p. m. avoid unconventionality and irregularity in business affairs. After 5:08 p. m. favors industrial affairs.

July 23-Aug. 22 (LEO)—This should be a favorable day for grasping opportunities and making advances. Your efficiency should be increased.

Aug. 23-Sept. 22 (VIRGO)—The entire day favors attention to general matters, whether in business, home, social, or artistic matters. Previous to 5:08 p. m. is an auspicious time for realty transactions.

Sept. 23-Oct. 22 (LIBRA)—Previous to 10:15 a. m. you will not only be easily annoyed, but will find that others disturb you, and therefore a critical attitude surrounds you and your affairs. New beginnings at this time may encounter disruptive tendencies.

Oct. 23-Nov. 21 (SCORPIO)—Today is more favorable for minor operations, for conserving and completing your present quota of work. Use care around electrical and mechanical work and avoid a spirit of criticism.

Nov. 22-Dec. 21 (SAGITTARIUS)—Advancement may be made with comparative ease in affairs relating to women, entertainment, beauty, art and perfumes before 4:15 p. m. Differences of opinion, a lack of temperance, accidental vibrations, are set in motion between 4:15 p. m. and 5:09 p. m., making this an inauspicious time for too much determination.

Dec. 22-Jan. 19 (CAPRICORN)—Excellent influences predominate the entire day, making this an auspicious time for almost any endeavor. You meet and give loyal support to those with whom you are associated, and dealings with influential or superior people tend towards success and prosperity.

Jan. 20-Feb. 18 (AQUARIUS)—Monetary affairs may be difficult today. The underlying trend of the entire day is towards unwise optimism, making this an inauspicious day for new and important undertakings, plans, decisions and changes.

Feb. 19-March 20 (PISCES)—The period previous to 2:30 p. m. favors beautifying the house, putting into effect new ideas and methods. After 3:30 p. m. favors finishing up old matters and for exercising patience in all things.

The WORRY CLINIC

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE

CASE E-209: Carolyn B., aged 45, is a religious poetess.

"Instead of telling husbands and wives how to get along in the marital relationship," she archly reproved me after a lecture in church, "it could be far better if you taught them abstinence.

"Why don't you urge man to lead a life on a purely spiritual plane.

"Let man cultivate an interest in esthetics, concentrate on art and poetry. Let him dwell on higher things.

"There is too much sex already without talking about such things!"

This woman is trying to compensate for the fact that she has lost her man to another woman. I'm sorry for her, though I admire her attempt to live on a spiritual plane.

But God gave us a brain so we'd use horse sense and attain happiness and the normal arrangements of life.

He gave us a healthy stomach, for example, which demands bread. Then he gave us a Commandment, "Thou shalt not steal."

He didn't expect our clergymen to urge their parishoners to try to do without food. When bread is obtained in the legitimate manner and eaten sensibly, it is a great boon to the stomach and relieves man of many hunger cramps.

If we were sent out into the world hungry and then urged to refrain from thievery, we'd find far more violators of the Commandment against stealing.

Such a form of ethics would have an abnormal strain placed upon it and soon would break down.

Instincts can be modified and channeled in proper grooves, but they cannot long be entirely repressed.

Religious fanatics cannot legislate against food and survive very long. Nor can such fanatics indict sex very long and expect their church to flourish.

Man has two basic appetites that must be fed regularly if he is to remain sufficiently rational and self-controlled to be a good church member. The first is his gastric hunger, and the second is his erotic hunger.

It is far more sensible to teach man how to legitimately satisfy both hungers within the limits of the moral code, than to try to oppose human instincts and preach a complete asceticism.

Women like Carolyn are whistling in the dark to keep up their own courage. Sooner or later they become hysterical, neurotic and often psychotic.

"Don't mind her," another woman later apologized. "She's a little off, you know."

In this column I am simply trying to show how to safeguard our ethical system by legitimately relieving man's inner tensions.

What the authors of cook books and culinary columns have done to show you wives how to satisfy man's gastric appetite, I am likewise attempting to do for a man's erotic hunger.

You wives have devoted husbands on your wedding day, so why not keep them that way? Our churches would rather have happy, well-adjusted families than divorced couples.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of The Constitution, inclosing a long 3c stamped, addressed envelope and a dime to cover typing or printing costs, when you seek personal advice or one of his psychological charts.)

Devoted Friendship Results From Finding Lost Cow

One morning, not so long ago, Mason Lowance Jr., aged six, and his four-year-old brother, David, found a cow wandering around the yard of their West Wesley road home. They were enamoured over having a real, live cow and hoped that no one would come to claim her. The yardman tied her to a tree and when evening came he milked the cow.

Mrs. Lowance, returning from a day of volunteer war work, was utterly bewildered to find her frigidaire literally full of milk. When she heard the story of the cow in the back yard, she immediately phoned the newspapers to ask if anyone had advertised for a cow, and was told that the Stuart Withams had lost one. Whereupon she phoned Mr. Witham, who had been frantically searching for his prized cow all day. Soon he and his yardman came over to take the "pet for a day" back home.

But David and Mason begged Mr. Witham to let the cow make her home with them, promising that if he would, they would supply the Witham family with milk daily. And that's just about what Mr. Witham has done for his young Lowance friends. He sends them not only sweet milk and buttermilk to drink, but plants for their garden and vegetables from his own, and all sorts of choice gifts as an expression of appreciation for having taken such grand care of his cow!

BATTALION'S NEW CO-CHAIRMEN

Matrimony has really invaded the ranks of the Girls' Battalion with devastating effect! For instance, Mary Parham Woolfolk, the captain, has had to replace both her co-chairmen at one time, for Peggy Dutton will become the bride of Capt. Tom Jones on December 1 and move down to Camp Stewart, and Laura Shallenberger has already become Mrs. Al Gossett and gone to Pensacola with her Navy lieutenant husband.

Today Mary Parham makes the first announcement of her new co-chairmen, who are Catherine Tift and Betty Jo Newbanks. Catherine, who has been serving as the battalion's entertainment chairman, made her debut two years ago, and Betty Jo is one of last winter's debs. Both are attractive and popular members of the younger set and are among the battalion's most valuable assets.

FIVE-CARAT DIAMOND

Dorothy Milam (Mrs. John L.) Conner is wearing an exquisite five-carat diamond ring these days, and thereby hangs a story. When Dorothy and John were in their late teens, they decided to come to Atlanta from their home in Marietta to be married. When John gave Dorothy her engagement ring it was very small, but with it went the promise that someday a five-carat stone would replace it. So on a recent trip to New York, John found the ring which he brought to Dorothy as a twenty-first wedding anniversary gift.

DO YOU KNOW?

That both a present and a former husband of a popular young Atlantan will serve as attendants in the same wedding at an early date? . . . That Pope Fuller, who is serving with the Army in Italy, has been elevated to the rank of major? . . . That Mrs. Elbert Tuttle and her daughter, Jane Tuttle Harmon, are taking the nurse's aide course at Crawford Long hospital during the absence of their husbands, Lt. Col. Elbert Tuttle and Lt. John Harmon, in the Pacific and Atlantic theaters of war? . . . That debutantes Evelyn Block and Rosemeri Lewis sold poppies from 8 a. m. until 7 p. m. on Armistice Day?

Mrs. Bush-Brown' Canvas Acquired

The Atlanta Art Association has for some years past evolved a policy of adding to its permanent collection of paintings by outstanding living artists. The latest addition to this distinguished group is an oil painting, "My Mother," by Marjorie Conant Bush-Brown. This particular canvas is of the late Mrs. James B. Conant, mother of Mrs. Bush-Brown and mother of James Bryant Conant, president of Harvard University. The portrait is considered one of the highlights among recent acquisitions and, according to Mrs. Lon Grove, director of public relations, adds immeasurably to the prestige of a permanent collection. Mrs. Bush-Brown, a well-known painter, is the wife of Harold Bush-Brown, head of the architectural department of Georgia Tech. Her position as an artist of note is attested by representation of her work in the permanent collection of International Business Machines collection, at Grady hospital in Atlanta, two portraits in Brittain Hall at Tech, and at the Atlanta Hostorical Society.

Mrs. Bush-Brown is a member of the Atlanta Artists' Members group and at present is exhibiting with the High Museum circuit show. She is a pupil of Hale, Benson and Tarbell.

It is most appropriate that the portrait "My Mother" will be exhibited as the picture of the month at the High Museum in February when the Southern States Art League show will be held, February 16-28. Atlantans will also have the pleasure of hearing Mrs. Bush-Brown on February 18 in another of her lectures, which will be open to the public.

ALL IN THE GAME
JACK TROY

A Better Team Norris Dean, just back from Gotham, has seen Notre Dame in three games—against Tulane, Navy and Army. Dean is convinced that Notre Dame is a lot better team than the Irish happened to be in Yankee Stadium when the Army ran over them to the tune of 59 to 0 last Saturday.

"I couldn't understand several things about the game. Notre Dame wasn't moving in to the attack as Notre Dame customarily does. I thought the linemen, particularly, were inclined to back up a little. But, of course, when a team is facing a bunch of grizzly bears I guess it's time to back up," Dean, Tech scout, pointed out.

Notre Dame used a couple of lines Saturday. They had one for offense and one for defense. Neither functioned any too well. But I think the Army game can be written off as the settlement of an old grudge. Army got even for a lot of things, and they got even in precedent-shattering fashion.

Army, of course, is one of the most powerful teams in existence. I don't think I ever saw a finer collection of speed and manpower combined.

That boy Doc Blanchard, who does everything well, including the blocking of opposing citizens into the stands, hails from Bishopville, S. C.. His daddy used to play for Tulane. Ed Kenna, another outstanding back, is from Jackson, Miss. A third backfield leader, Glenn Davis, is a Fort Worth, Texas, boy.

Bob Kelly, of Notre Dame, couldn't run against Army, and small wonder. He didn't have any protection. Frank Dancewicz did the best job of completing passes to the opposition I ever saw, but he is a good passer. He simply had to pass with Army Cadets swarming in his face.

"Take it from me," added Norris Dean, "Notre Dame is a much better team than the Notre Dame you saw Saturday. They've been taking some tough physical lickings and they'll bounce back in a couple of weeks."

No Tickets Left Notre Dame takes on Northwestern as Georgia Tech journeys to Baton Rouge to play L. S. U. this Saturday. And then, the following Saturday, Ed McKeever brings the Fighting Irish south for the first of two Atlanta games.

The game long has been a sell-out. There are no pasteboards to be bought for love, money or gas tickets. They've been gone for weeks.

I wish this fact to become perfectly clear because numerous requests are still being directed to the Georgia Tech athletic department and the sports departments of the newspapers. The tickets just aren't to be had.

The Tech-Notre Dame game will be spectacular, and make no mistake about that.

Some of the coaches were talking yesterday about the splendid play of the twin freshmen aces, Dinky Bowen and George Mathews. Bowen would lower his head and run over Tulane defenders, they said. And they were talking, too, about the play Mathews made when, upon catching a pass, he feinted Dub Jones out of position and ran on by him for a touchdown. Jones fell flat as Mathews sprinted for the double stripes alone.

In another year Tech's Bowen and Mathews, if they're still in action, will be dual contenders for leading honors among the nation's top backs.

It is simply one of those things that the experience of Bobby Tom Jenkins, Doc Blanchard, Kenna and others will supersede their spectacular performance this season, Kelly, of Notre Dame, definitely is out of the All-American picture.

The Army and Navy, Ohio State, Michigan, Randolph Field and Southern California backs will run a merry chase to see which four will make the leading teams. Billy McWilliams, of Mississippi State, is another good back who'll simply be an also-ran in a year of very fine backs.

Boys' High and Lanier Sam Glassman is booming major league Macon attendance for the Boys' High-Lanier game Friday night at Ponce de Leon Park. Glassman, former football official, has turned sports editor of the Telegraph.

Glassman, pointing out that Coach Stooge Davis and the Poets reach the big game of the season Friday night when they play Shorty Doyal's Boys' High club for the championship of the Georgia Interscholastic Athletic Association, says he'll be very happy to settle for a one-point triumph.

Boys' High is to be the fourth unbeaten team Lanier has met this season. They've won seven straight G. I. A. A. games. They're undefeated. They won their last G. I. A. A. title in 1936. So, as Glassman points out, Lanier has been through some lean and hungry football years. Eight years, to be exact.

"It is hard for a visiting team to whip either Boys' High or Tech High in Atlanta," Glassman adds. "The boys from the smaller towns are awed by the large crowd and unfamiliar surroundings. Naturally, a team plays better on its own field and before a partisan crowd. There should be enough Macon people going to this game to make their presence felt to the boys on the Orange and Green team."

Well, it should be quite a game. The only mar on the Boys' High record is the 13-13 tie against Allan Shi's Village Smithies, of Tech High.

Negro Elevens Clash Thursday

The Reception Center Tigers, crack Negro service team from Fort Benning, will play the Morehouse Maroon Tigers, Thursday night, under the floodlights, at Ponce de Leon Park.

The Reception Center eleven, coached by Capt. Charles R. Houhgland, former Notre Dame star, has chalked up a long string of victories over college and service teams in this section, and will risk this undefeated record against the strong Maroon Tigers.

Special guests at the game will be a group of wounded overseas veterans from Lawson General hospital. A special section will be reserved for white fans.

Lefty Grove's Son

LONACONING, Md., Nov. 13.—(AP)—The son of "Lefty" Grove, former major league pitcher, was wounded in action in Holland October 28, the War Department informed young Grove's wife today. Pfc. Robert G. Grove was attached to a tank destroyer unit.

Trippi, Glenn Dobbs To Play Here With Service Teams December 10

Crack Elevens Will Battle In Relief Tilt

By F. M. WILLLIAMS.

Charley Trippi and Glenn Dobbs, two of the nation's best halfbacks, will be matched here December 10 when the Third Air Force from Morris Field, N. C., and the Second Air Force from Harding Field, La., clash in a game for the benefit of the Air Corps Relief Fund.

The game was announced as a probability by the Constitution Sunday morning, but yesterday arrangements were completed for the contest. It will start at 2 o'clock at Grant Field and admission will be $3.60 in the east and west stands and $2.40 in the south stands. Tickets have been ordered.

FINAL DETAILS

Final details for the game, one of two between Air Force elevens, will be worked out Wednesday when an Army officer arrives in Atlanta to confer with Coach W. A. Alexander, of Tech, the Constitution learned yesterday.

Teams representing the First and Fourth Air Forces will meet about the same time and the winners of the two games will clash January 1 on the west coast, probably in San Francisco. All proceeds from the three games will be used to aid families of airmen killed in this war.

General Henry H. (Hap) Arnold, comamnding general of the Air Corps, may attend the game here.

Both clubs boast some of the finest college players in America.

Dobbs was a former All-American football player at Tulsa, and was voted the most outstanding member of the college all-star team that played the Chicago Bears last August in Evanston, Ill.

ONE OF FINEST

He was also a member of the all-star team that whipped the Washington Redskins in 1943. He is considered one of the finest passers in the game today.

The Gremlins whipped Georgia Preflight, 19 to 7, in one game, and won a second contest by a much wider score.

Adding to the attractiveness of the game, locally, is the fact that "Buster" Mott, former Georgia and Tech High halfback, is coaching the Gremlin backfield.

The game looms as one of the finest Atlantans have had an opportunity to see this year, and will be a fitting windup to the 1944 season. It comes one week after the Georgia-Tech game in Athens.

Masters' Tourney May Be Revived

CHICAGO, Nov. 13.—(AP)—There will be a $115,000 lure—both war bond and cash variety—scattered around golf's golden trail during the winter and early spring.

Fred J. Corcoran, manager of the tournament bureau of the P. G. A., expressed the possibility the Masters' Tournament at Augusta, Ga., a wartime sacualty, might be revived in the spring. He based his hopes, he said, on the return of Robert T. (Grand Slam) Jones to this country, following his recent honorable discharge from the Army Air Corps which he had been serving overseas as a lieutenant colonel.

Paschal Injured And Loses Lead

DETROIT, Nov. 13.—(AP)—Bill Paschal, of the New York Giants, lost his National Football League individual ground gaining leadership yesterday to Fullback Johnny Grigas, of the Cardinal-Pittsburgh combination.

Grigas carried the ball 25 times for a total of 123 yards against the Detroit Lions to bring his season's yardage to 558. Paschal advanced 46 yards against the Philadelphia Eagles and brought his total to 513 yards.

Paschal received a torn ligament on a tackle by Duke Maroric late in the second period.

Tech, Maroons Top Elevens In Bowl Eye

By SKIPPER PATRICK

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 13.—(AP) Georgia Tech and Mississippi State were conceded the inside track in the race for Sugar Bowl bids today, although President A. B. Nicholas of the mid-winter sports association cleverly avoided official commitment concerning identity of any teams under consideration for the post season classic.

Flooded with questions at the Monday quarterback luncheon, Nicholas said, "for the simple reason that we compete with other bowls for top teams and there's no point in tipping them off about our favorites."

Asked if the Sugar Bowl would consider matching Georgia Tech and Mississippi State, Nicholas replied:

"It's been our policy to select the two top teams of the nation regardless of section. We have never been faced with this kind of a situation before—two teams in the same conference. I couldn't say 'yes' or 'no.'"

Sports Editor Fred Digby of the Item suggested a game between Mississippi State and Georgia Tech for the Southeastern Conference and Sugar Bowl championships.

". . . . if Tech and State go on to finish with clean slates, why wouldn't it be a good idea to pair them in the Sugar Bowl?" Digby wrote. "Shorty McWilliams versus Dinkey Bowen. There is something in the way of a football morsel to chew over. Maybe it doesn't have enough 'national' appeal, but I think the Sugar Bowlers could go a long way and not come up with a better game for the spectators . . . "

Sports Editor Harry Martinez of the States also listed a meeting of Shorty McWilliams and Dinkey Bowen as his No. 1 choice, and further suggested Georgia Tech and Oklahoma A. and M., or Mississippi State and Oklahoma A. and M.

Sinkwich, Ison On All-Star Team

MIAMI, Fla., Nov. 13.—(AP)—Col. Bob Neyland's Tennessee Volunteers of 1939, termed by him the greatest football team he ever coached, dominated the all-star Orange Bowl football teams released today by the bowl's all-star committee.

Second team: Ends, Buddy Elrod, 1941, Mississippi State, and Waddy Young, 1939, Oklahoma; tackles, Bruiser Kinard, 1936, University of Mississippi, and John Tripson, 1941, Mississippi State; guards, Bill Crawford, 1942, Texas Christian, and Ed Molinski, 1939, Tennessee; center, Mike Basrak, 1937, Duquesne; backs, Paul Christman, 1940, Missouri; Steve Van Buren, 1944, Louisiana State; Boyd Brumbaugh, 1937, Duquesne, and Johnny Pingel, 1938, Michigan State.

Officials' Meeting

There will be a meeting on Friday night at 7:30 o'clock at the Y. W. C. A., 37 Auburn avenue, for all women interested in officiating or refereeing women's basketball games. The purpose of the meeting will be to organize a group of women officials to handle girls' games.

WILCOX, EX-JACKET, MISSING IN ACTION

Allen Wilcox, youngest of three brothers who played football at Georgia Tech a few years back, is missing in action in the South Pacific, Coach W. A. Alexander was advised in a letter received Monday.

Young Wilcox was in the Naval Air Corps and at the time he was lost while flying off one of Uncle Sam's carriers patrolling in the Pacific theater.

He was a native of Texas.

Two Newcomers To Appear Here On Mat Program

Two newcomers, Pierre DeGlane, talented French Canadian, and Ray Eckert, of St. Louis, Mo., are expected to make a real hit with local grappling fans when they bow on Professor Paul Jones' regular weekly wrestling program Friday night at the City Auditorium.

Eckert, a hefty 225 pounder, is scheduled against young Thor Morgan, of Nashville, in one of the main supporting matches on the all-star four-match program. Ray recently returned to the ring after working for two years in Texas shipyards. He is one of the handsomest performers in the game and is well proportioned for a man of his size. He has tossed some of the best of the headliners since returning to the mat and is now hot after a championship bout with Wild Bill Longson.

DeGlane will make his first start here against husky Benny Bennicasa, of California, in the semi-windup event to the featured Cowboy Luttrell-Ralph Garabaldi bout. DeGlane has long been one of the leading heavyweights in the game and is sure to give Atlanta fans a real exhibition of the manly art of catch as catch can.

The main event is a natural. Ralph Garabaldi dislikes Luttrell with a passion. He has promised to give the Cowboy a working over in no uncertain fashion.

The opener will feature Jack Dillon, the Chattanooga roughneck, and Irish Jack Kelley. This bout was arranged by Promoter Jones at the request of Kelley. In their last meeting, Dillon won out on what Kelley claims was foul tactics, and he wants a crack at him Friday to even up matters.

Army Rated Top Eleven; Jackets 4th

By PAUL B. WILLIAMSON.

Last week ran pretty true to form. Sure, there were a dozen upsets against the Williamson pregame ratings, including late returns from the previous week. But most of the upsets were in closely rated games and several of them were not against "the dope."

Army, by virtue of its 59-to-0 whitewash of Notre Dame—still no comment by the system—remained clearly tops over all the nation's teams. Theoretically Army's present Williamson rating is well above 100. That is one of the few times in the long history of the system that any team has gone over the system's theoretically perfect mark. The Randolph Ramblers did it, too, several times this year up until week before last.

Army Is Leader Also In AP's Weekly Poll

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—(AP)—Army, by drubbing Notre Dame Saturday, not only tightened its own grasp on first place in today's Associated Press poll to determine the country's top ranking football team but also knocked the Irish out of the elite ranking for the first time since October 12, 1942.

The South Bend Ramblers skidded all the way to eleventh in the estimation of 106 of the country's sports writers, following their losses to Navy and Army on consecutive Saturdays.

The Cadets grabbed 77 of the first place nominations, gathered in 25 selections for second place and were third on two and fourth on the remaining pair. On a basis of 10 points for each first place vote, nine for second, etc., they totalled 935 points.

Randolph Field climbed to second place with 770 points, exchanging places with Ohio State's civilians, who are in fourth place with 741. Navy, third a week ago, retained that rating with 759 points. The Buckeye drop followed a 54-to-19 conquest of Pittsburgh. The Texas Fliers conquered Maxwell Field, 25 to 0, in their most recent outing.

Georgia Tech and Duke, two southern powers, moved into the top ten, displacing Illinois and the Irish. Tech snared ninth place while Duke, which spilled previously unbeated Wake Forest, was awarded tenth.

Walco Teams Play Tonight

Formal opening exercises of the 1944-45 Walco League basketball season will be held tonight at Sports Arena featured by a Victory parade of all 20 teams participating in the program and brief talks by notables as well as three cage games.

The program will get under way at 7 p. m. with Lt. Col. Wallace Ford representing Maj. Gen. Frederick Uhl, commanding officer of the Fourth Service Command; Executive Secretary Brewer, representing Mayor Hartsfield and the city of Atlanta; Raleigh Drennon and several other city council members present. Councilman Drennon will give a brief talk on the proposed plans for the new addition to the City Auditorium and its part in Atlanta and its postwar sports program.

The three cage games will bring together members of the Girls' Class A League with the following schedule:

Naval Air Station WAVES vs. Conley Depot Lassies.
Lorelei Ladies vs. Johnny Moon's Tom-Boys.
College Park vs. Sports Arena Blues.

PREP COACH SPEAKER

Allen Shi Is Guest Of Touchdown Club

Allen Shi, Tech High school football coach, was guest speaker at the Touchdown Club luncheon yesterday in the Ansley hotel.

Coach Shi's team played Boys' High to a 13-13 tie Friday night in the year's biggest prep game in Atlanta.

The Smithie mentor praised the play of his whole team, singling out Pierce McWhorter, whose fine passing and line bucking brought about the two Tech High scores, for particular mention.

PRAISES PURPLE LINEMEN

He said Broadnax and Upchurch, Boys' High end and tackle, respectively, spent most of the night in the Tech High backfield. He also said he thought Dickie Ray and Tommy Pope played well for the purples.

There were reports on games throughout the nation at yesterday's meeting.

"Buck" Cheeves told about the Auburn-Mississippi State game, saying that Auburn would have won handily except for Billy McWilliams, the brilliant State halfback. Cheeves, who refereed the game, said McWilliams is the best back he has seen this year, replacing "Dub" Jones, who up until Saturday was Buck's "back of the year."

BULLDOGS WIN EASILY

"Pup" Phillips, head linesman at the Georgia-Florida game, said the Bulldogs were in the best condition, and therefore won just about as they pleased. Florida dominated play the first few minutes, but weren't in the game after the half, he said.

George Gardner reported on the Alabama-Ole Miss game and said he'd still take Vaughn Mancha as his center. Gardner calls the Alabama star "Mr. Center."

Bill Bentley made the report on the Tech-Tulane game and Scrappy O'Sullivan reported on the Duke-Wake Forest tilt. Jack Troy told briefly about the Army-Notre Dame game, which he covered for The Constitution.

Chick Hosch and Pete Buckley got the prize for the football picks. Each missed only three out of 20 games.

Pictures of the Georgia-Alabama game were shown, with Major Bill Hartman doing the commentary.

Next week Bobby Dodd will be back as the club's guest and will show pictures of the Tech-Duke game, which Duke won, 19 to 13.

Alex Shifts Rollo Phillips

Rollo Phillips, the roly-poly Georgia Tech lineman who spent most of his time last Saturday in Tulane's backfield, has been shifted for the second time this season to a guard position, Coach W. A. Alexander announced yesterday as he began work for Saturday night's game with L. S. U. in Baton Rouge.

Phillips started off the season as a tackle, was shifted to guard for one game, and then went back to tackle. But he's going to start against the Bayou Tigers, barring injuries this week, of course, at guard.

Luke Bowen and Maurice Furchgott, the two starting Tech guards in recent games, are both small and have been getting pushed around considerably. They need help and Phillips is the only available man to give it to them.

Dean Gaines, the Decatur giant, will replace Phillips at tackle.

Two first-string men were on the sideline with injuries Monday, but will probably be able to play against L. S. U.

Joe Daniel, end, and Johnny McIntosh, blocking back, suffered identical injuries in the Tulane game. Both have bruised hips.

It was also announced yesterday that Jimmy Castleberry, end, had played his last game at Tech for the duration. Jimmy leaves Thursday for California, where he will join the Merchant Marine.

He is a brother of Clint Castleberry, star Tech halfback in 1942, who is now in the Air Corps. Jimmy started the Auburn game and has been used in every contest this season, although he is only a freshman. His loss will be felt keenly.

ROSE BOWL EYES TECH, ALABAMA

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 13.—(AP)—Georgia Tech and Alabama are among the 15 teams Pacific Coast Conference officials announced were being considered as possible Rose Bowl game contestants.

The other teams being considered for the Pasadena New Year's Day game are Ohio State, Michigan, Army, Navy, Holy Cross, Iowa State, Michigan State, Mississippi State, Tennessee, Texas, Yale, Tulane, and the Oklahoma Aggies.

Bulldogs Lose Rabbit Smith

ATHENS, Ga., Nov. 13.—Facing the prospect of being outweighed by a big margin to each man in their fifth Southeastern Conference encounter of the season Saturday in Columbus, the crippled Georgia Bulldogs had a light workout today in preparation for their Auburn contest.

"Rabbit" Smith, Georgia's ace right halfback, is out with a broken arm and will not play any more this season. Ironically enough, The 155-pound Floridian broke his arm about the same time as he hurt his knee and injured his hand last season.

Al Perl, Stanley Nestorak, Clayton Deavers and Billy Rutland are all troubled with minor injuries. Andy Perhach, giant right tackle whose injury forced his removal in the Florida game, is back in good physical condition and will start the Auburn game.

Georgia coaches were somewhat surprised at the Bulldogs' 38-12 victory over the Florida Gators, but were pessimistic over their Auburn tilt. Columbus has long proved a "jinx town" to the Bulldogs, who bowed there to Auburn in 1942 and to L. S. U. in 1943, both by large margins.

Midgets Undefeated

The Moseley Park Midgets won their sixth straight game without a loss this season when they downed the Optimist Club boys, 35 to 26, in a football game on the Optimists' field yesterday.

Army-Navy Sell-out

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 13.—(AP)—Capt. C. O. Humphreys, director of athletics at the U. S. Naval Academy, announced tonight that the Army-Navy football game to be played here December 2 is a complete sellout.

UNUSUAL OPPORTUNITY
$250,000 ESTATE
The R. C. PERKY ESTATE, located between Miami and Key West, comprising around 9,000 acres, has been turned over to me by the executors to handle and dispose of same in order that the estate can be settled.
THREE is about 3,000 acres of this property located about the same distance south of Miami and Miami Beach as Palm Beach is to the north, and I have some very definite ideas about developing and selling 3,000 acres with five miles of ocean frontage and the same amount of bay frontage, as the property extends from the ocean to the bay, and this particular tract can be developed to be a second Miami Beach. The rest of the estate I would plan to sell for enough to not only pay for the whole tract, but to develop this ocean front tract.
HAVE the honor and distinction of being one of the original charter members of the MIAMI BEACH BOARD OF REALTORS with Miami Beach City License No. 1 and the State of Florida No. 86, and believe that I am qualified to handle the situation to the best interest of all concerned.
THIS estate was appraised some time ago for 2½ million dollars, and the executors have given me a price of ¼ million dollars on this property in its entirety, terms half cash, balance to be arranged.
I WILL be at the ATLANTA BILTMORE HOTEL until November 20 and would be very glad to interview anyone interested as I have full data with me. After November 27 I will be at my office, Miami Beach.
